Pearson Medical Plan

'Not State Medicine'

WELLAND, Ont. (CP) — Lester Pearson said Saturday night his medical insurance plan is not state medicine.

Addressing an overflow audience of 1,500, the Liberal leader said the purpose of his plan is to make sure no Canadian family is financially crippled by medical bills.

"I can't be dogmatic about the details," he said. These would have to be worked out with the provinces. But the scheme would cover "major medical, dental and surgical costs," he said.

Mr. Pearson said what he had in mind is that if medical bills rise to a certain percentage of a family's income, the cost would be paid by the state.

He urged Canadians to think before they voted on March 31. They should not be befuddled, bemused or beguiled by excited oratory, but should study the programs of the various parties and compare them.

'We Will Stop It'

John D. Hits At Dumping

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Saturday night in this textile-milling city that his government does not intend to see any industry undermined by dumping foreign products into the Canadian market.

Mr. Diefenbaker referred to the textile industry in both the French and English sections of his hour-long speech. He spoke in both languages before an audience of 1,200.

He said the textile industry in recent years has had to close many of its plants and reduce employment. The industry had said that foreign competition infringed on the rights of Canadian industry and labor.

"We do not intend to see any industry or agriculture in Canada undermined as a result of the dumping of products into Canada."

The first duty of any government was to look after the people of its own country.

To Save Lives

Hero Risks Death

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Capt. Edwin V. Ferry nursed a crippled air force plane over a suburban housing development and crashed in a muddy open field Saturday.

The big radar ship from McClelland air force base burst into flames, but all 18 crewmen escaped. Four were injured, including the heroic 41-year-old Ferry. His spine was broken.

"If ever anyone deserved a medal it was this pilot," said Forrest Snyder, who stood outside his home and watched the Super Constellation skim over the TV antennas and crash half a mile from the nearest house.

One of the plane's four engines had caught fire on takeoff six minutes earlier.

MIKE TODD DIES . . . Elizabeth Taylor collapses

* * *

Mike Todd Thought In Millions

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Mike Todd, whose plane crashed and burned in the mountains of New Mexico yesterday, was at the peak of his career as show business' most dynamic, colorful producer of the day.

Born 50 years ago in Minneapolis, he lost and made millions.

After a string of Broadway successes, he produced a movie Around the World in 80 Days, his first picture that won five Hollywood Oscars last year and has done fabulous business.

He married film star Elizabeth Taylor, his third wife, Feb. 2, 1957. His second wife, actress Joan Blondell, divorced him in 1950. His first died in 1946.

Todd did everything on a lavish scale.

On Broadway he was a legend as producer of extravagant musicals, who was loaded on Monday and broke on Tuesday.

He was known as a spectacular gambler who could drop $25,000 in one night's gin rummy and a shrewd but erratic showman-promoter who didn't spend $100,000 where it was possible to spend $400,000.

A cigar-puffing, big operator, he lived up to his 100 suits and $2,000-a-month personal telephone bill.

But a few years ago he told an interviewer that all that was behind him.

"Give me peace of mind, friendship," he said. "That's

'What About The Kids?'

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—Actress Elizabeth Taylor collapsed Saturday and was placed under sedation when informed of the plane crash involving her husband, Mike Todd.

She started babbling hysterically but the thought of her three children, Mike 4, Christopher, 3, sons by her previous husband, Michael Wilding, and Liza, 6 months, Todd's daughter, quieted her.

"What about the kids?" she asked.

We Have No Objection Says Ottawa Official

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A Canadian trade official said Saturday the government would probably have no objection to the sale of Canadian-produced passenger automobiles to Red China.

But in Washington a treasury official declared no Canadian subsidiary of an American company can sell goods to a Communist country unless the parent firm obtains an export licence from the U.S. government.

The officials were commenting on a statement made in Windsor, Ont., Friday by George Burt, Canadian director of the United Automobile Workers, that Ford of Canada could have sold 1,000 cars to Red China but that the parent Ford Company in the U.S. vetoed the deal.

OUT OF WORK

He said thousands of Canadian auto workers are without work yet auto companies in this country "were prevented by the U.S. state department from filling an order for 1,000 cars for China."

In Ottawa, M. W. Sharp, deputy minister of trade and commerce, emphasized the Canadian government was not involved in the reported deal. He said no applications for export permits for cars had been received although the Canadian government probably would grant an export permit if approached.

The treasury official in Washington said the department received no request for an export licence to cover the shipment of cars to Red China by Ford.

He added that he was not prepared to say whether an export licence would have been granted if the parent Ford company had asked for it. However, no such licences have been granted in the past.

FINES, JAIL

The U.S. official said that under the "Trading With the Enemy" Act, a parent company which did not obey the regulation requiring a special permit for export of goods to Red China would face a $10,000 fine and up to 10 years in prison for its officers if convicted.

In Vancouver, Marshall Johnson, president of East-West Import-Export Limited, a Vancouver firm through which he promotes Canadian trade in the Far East, said the order was "one of many" for Canadian goods he obtained during a 2½-month visit to China in 1956.

He said General Motors refused outright to consider the order. Ford of Canada was at first prepared to supply the cars, he added, but later cancelled the transaction because of "U.S. government regulations."

Shivering Taxpayer Seeks Empty White House Room

BALTIMORE (AP)—Since President Eisenhower isn't using the White House, a Baltimore taxpayer without electricity since Wednesday's blizzard asked him Saturday for permission to move in for the weekend.

Vernon McCahan wired the president at Augusta, Ga., where Eisenhower went in search of golf and sunshine.

"We are a taxpaying family with seven children who have been without heat, light, cooking facilities, refrigeration and even the time of day since 10:30 p.m. Wednesday," McCahan wired.

"As you are not using the White House, we would appreciate weekend use to thaw out."

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

PILOTS are worried about the web of cables that power companies are spinning in coastal B.C.

Many power lines that stretch across passes between islands are a menace to aircraft.

Aircraft coming in to land or flying low beneath a cloud ceiling, are often in danger of colliding with these obstructions.

Not only power cables but also construction cables and logging lines are causing headaches to fliers.

* * *

A few days after a carrier cable had been strung across Seymour Narrows to assist in moving barges working in Ripple Rock, a commercial pilot ran into the line and crash-landed. He didn't know it was there.

Luckily the line was only a temporary one. It snapped upon impact. And the aircraft hit it in such a way that only the floats were broken off and the pilot was able to set down safely.

Later on, heavier cables were strung across the narrows. Had they been in place at the time of the accident the pilot might have been killed and the plane destroyed.

* * *

Some people say that pilots have no cause to complain, because they shouldn't be flying so low in the first place. The answer is that they often have no choice. The weather may close in while they are in the air, and force them to descend beneath the overcast.

In some places they find cables obstructing their approach to a landing.

A pilot landing in Quatsino Sound got a nasty shock when he looked back at the place where he had just touched down and saw a cable rise out of the sea. A few moments later it was stretched taut between a spar up the hillside and a point across the water.

It was a line for loading log barges. It had been slack when the plane landed, sagging in the water. The aircraft had passed over it. But the donkeyman who hoisted the line had no means of knowing that a plane was coming in. He would never have heard it.

* * *

"Sometimes the first we know of a new power cable is when we see it," a pilot told me. "I found the one by Salt Spring Island that way."

Some of the cables span a considerable range of altitude. One at Jervis Inlet, for instance, runs all the way from 1,600 feet at its highest point to 350 feet at the place where it sags over the water.

"Sometimes they put markers on the cables, but the markers are no use in duff weather," a pilot said. "You can't see them."

Veteran pilots of B.C. Air Lines, who know the coast like their own back yards, don't fret too much about these obstructions. They are usually informed about them.

* * *

But private fliers, the pilots of logging-company aircraft, and pilots here from Eastern Canada on extended charters, often do not get to hear about these cables until long after they have been strung, if at all.

Some pilots believe that too much freedom has been given power companies to obstruct the air. They feel that air passages should be guarded as jealously from hazards as seaways are.

Ripple Rock Death Prepared

Worker pushes load of high explosives to head of 570-foot shaft that leads to tunnel under Seymour Narrows. Small tunnels leading from this and two vertical shafts will be packed with 1,400 tons of explosives and detonated April 5 in an effort to remove Ripple Rock, a navigation hazard that has claimed more than 100 lives. The explosive, one of the most powerful non-atomic types ever developed, is packed in the water-tight cans.—(CP)

What Price For Slaves?

By BARNEY McKINLEY

What price the horrors of the Hong Kong prisoners of war in the Second World War?

For a diet of grasshoppers and thistles, hard labor, hard knocks and an ordeal that killed dozens of comrades?

That's the question asked in Victoria last night by a delegation of survivors from Japanese prisoner of war camps to whom the hardships of the experience are still fresh in memory.

The delegation charged the Canadian government with dodging the responsibility of paying forced slave labor recompense to the men who labored for Japanese captors for four years.

FOLLOW-UP

The representation here was a follow-up to the brief presented to Secretary of State Ellen Fairclough in Duncan early last week.

In the brief, the members of the Vancouver Island branch of the Hong Kong Veterans' Association of Canada urged payment of claims for slave labor hardships in addition to the $1 a day paid all Canadian prisoners of war for the time spent in Japanese prison camps.

Yesterday the Victoria spokesmen questioned the statement in Ottawa by "a treasury official" that Canada received only $125,000 with which to pay Canadians imprisoned in the Far East in Second World War.

$12,000,000

Their brief charged the War Claims Commission actually holds $12,000,000 from which the claims could and should be paid.

Asked by the Hong Kong vets is a sum of $1.50 a day for "every day spent in prisoner of war camps where prisoners were used as forced slave labor."

Story of the camps was retold last night by Victoria survivors, Lionel Speller, 39, of 3416 Bethune, and Walter Jenkins, 37, of 3229 Carman.

NOV. 16, 1941

The two went overseas with the "C" Force Brigade, RCSC, which landed in Hong Kong, Nov. 16, 1941.

The burly Jenkins was a 215-pound former member of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers football team and a member of an All-Star Victoria rugby team a few months before he left for the Far East.

For a summary his weight was 127 pounds when he was liberated 1,352 days after capture.

"We were three weeks on the boat, three weeks in Hong Kong, 18 days at war—and then the prison camp," the two sum up. "The surrender came at 4 p.m. Christmas Day. We spent that night in the China Light and Power Station with a cigar to celebrate."

"We just waited for the roundup. It came quick enough—7 a.m. Boxing Day."

Along with other allied prisoners they were taken first to nearby Sham Shui Po prison camp where they spent a year laboring on the Kaitak Airfield "moving a mountain with pick and shovel—if it hadn't been for the Red Cross we would have starved."

The bantamweight Speller walked five miles to and from the Nippon Kokan shipyards every day for more than two years on a diet so slim "we fought over an orange peel dropped by a Japanese guard."

In the meantime Jenkins was working as a longshoreman in a camp where 85 out of 300 Canadians "died in the first three months."

In his own group of 50, subsisting on a diet of a small rice ration plus such items as grasshoppers and snakes, only 27 survived.

Whistles Assessed

BISHOP'S STORTFORD, England (UP) — A court here has set the value of a wolf whistle at one pound a year by knocking that amount off a real estate tax.

Fred Whitehead told a tax court here that wife, Mary, can't sunbathe in the back yard without a chorus of whistles from a nearby factory.

Mrs. Whitehead said she intends to go right on sunbathing.

Model Production

'Mutiny' Guild's Best

By BERT BINNY

"The Caine Mutiny Court-Martial," which opened last night at Langham Court Theatre must be ranked among those attractions which should not, if possible, be missed.

It is primarily a very sensible and believable play, of sustained interest and with a story that requires no embellishment. Its impact is produced by implying that it is character which generates events and not invariably the reverse.

The play was admirably set and presented throughout and particular skill was evident in the use of a large cast on a rather small stage.

But the happiest circumstance of all was the perfect harmony of purpose effected between author, Herman Wouk and all the players. The individual characterizations were so good that the over-all feeling was not only finely balanced but also evolved without apparent effort. The highest credit is due director Bert Williams.

There were no weak parts. Danny Christian's Junius Urban stood out with extra prominence because of the relief it afforded; but that relief would not have been felt without his excellent playing. Peter Howell as the judge advocate was consistently fine, and Len Carlson as "Captain Queeg" performed superbly and in studied detail.

Don Ross, Cliff Clarke and Stan Wade were likewise good and the two doctors, Binkie Tisdall and Thomas Mayne, left scarcely anything to be desired. Roy Blevins and Bob Aylward were seen to great advantage as Keith and Keefer, respectively. The brief parts of Peter Cotton, Bill Fawley and Bruce Somers were carried through with welcome care despite their apparent unimportance.

This play certainly ranks with the very best that the guild has presented in the past five years. It is one of those model productions where every element is in place and in proportion.

Off-Beat Concert Bonanza

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A musical gentleman from Independence, Mo., and a "39-year-old" comedian who plays the violin brought a financial bonanza to the Kansas City Philharmonic Orchestra Saturday night.

The Independence musician was former president Harry S. Truman. He presided as master of ceremonies for the silver anniversary concert before a sell-out audience of 2,500.

The comedian was Jack Benny, who played three violin solos.

The audience paid $2.50 to $50 a seat and the $50,000 take virtually wiped out the orchestra's debts.

Benny played the first movement of Mendelssohn's violin concerto in E minor, and "Capriccio Espagnol" by Rimsky-Korsakoff straight, except that he forgot his bow and had to go back to the wings.

There was some feigned friction with the concertmaster, Tiberius Klausner, who showed a tendency to take over during the more difficult passages.

Mr. Truman took the baton as the 75-piece orchestra played "The Stars and Stripes Forever."

"I've never been poor, only broke. Being poor is a frame of mind. Being broke is a temporary situation."

In 1947 he was close to bankruptcy, with creditors demanding more than $1,000,000.

In 1956 Todd hit Hollywood with unprecedented impact.

He put a few million into Around the World in 80 Days and made it a smash.

Todd perished in flames early Saturday with three others in the crash of his twin-engined airplane "the Lucky Liz."

The executive-type plane plunged with tremendous force, exploded and burned in the Zuni Mountains of western New Mexico.

Also dead are movie writer, Art Cohn, pilot Bill Verner, and co-pilot Tom Barkley.

Miss Taylor did not accompany her husband. She stayed at their West Coast home because of a cold.

Todd, an enthusiastic air traveler, was flying to New York for a testimonial dinner set for tonight.

NEW YORK (AP) — A gold statuette earmarked for presentation to Mike Todd at a Friars Club testimonial dinner tonight will go to his widow, Elizabeth Taylor.

LONDON (AP) — Producer Mike Todd's death stunned British entertainment circles.

Lady Pamela Berry, who cooperated with Todd on arrangements for the "Around the World in 80 Days" premiere which raised $42,000 for Britain's newspaper press fund, said his death "is a terrible piece of news."

Wall's Full of Holes But Kitten Sam Free

CHICAGO (AP)—Sam the kitten got into the wall Saturday and capered invisibly from one room to the other in the South Side apartment of Mrs. Iris Kinney.

"We could hear him going from room to room through the walls and ceiling," Mrs. Kinney said. Unable to coax Sam out, she called the Animal Welfare league.

Two men were dispatched, armed with hammers, screwdrivers and tidbits to entice cats. But this six-week-old cat apparently didn't like sardines and cheese. He just kept running through the walls after entering through a small hole in the plaster.

Whenever they thought they had Sam cornered, they gouged a hole. In a closet they chopped a five-inch opening, but Sam wasn't there.

They cut a three-inch gap in the dining room wall. Again no Sam.

After nearly four hours, they returned to the closet and made another incision. But instead of inserting the tidbits for bait, this time they tried another tack. Figuring it takes a cat to catch a cat, they held up a female member of Sam's litter so the mischievous kitten could see her.

It worked. Sam's out, and in the doghouse. The apartment's full of holes.

Proud Peer Picks Up Dancer's Duel Dare

De Cuevas promptly picked up Lifar's challenge, a handkerchief tossed haughtily at his feet—and flung it in his face.

Lifar said he would send his seconds to the Chilean-born marquis.

After the first act Lifar and the marquis shouted insults at each other from their boxes. Just before the second act Lifar met De Cuevas in the lobby and threw down his challenge.

Fish Escape Airy Grave

VANCOUVER (CP)—The 12,000-gallon main tank at the Vancouver Aquarium burst Friday night and pitched its fishy contents on to the floor.

Skates and flounders, dog fish and ling cod splashed around in a few inches of water.

An eight-foot octopus and a big ling cod were left high and dry on the tank bottom.

All but a tiny flounder were saved. Caretaker Eric Carl phoned curator Murray Newman and within minutes the whole staff and several members of their families arrived to assist in rescue operations.

Biologist Dmitry Stone scooped up the 60-pound octopus from the tank floor and dropped him in the spare tank.

"He didn't give me any trouble," said Stone. "He was pretty far gone. I think he'll recover."

The accident was caused by the collapse of one of the four inch-thick glass panels in the 35-foot-long tank.

WHAT DOCTORS SAY ABOUT:
Better Health Through Knowledge

● Cancer

Q. Can cancer be cured with drugs?

A. Some types of cancer can be treated with chemicals. Other types require the use of radium, surgery, x-ray, and radioactive substances. These are accepted treatment methods. Watch out for "sure cures" for cancer offered under fancy names and at fancy prices. One fellow who called himself "doctor" (he had a high-school diploma from a correspondence school) charged $400 for his "cure" which consisted of a "tonic" and some vitamin pills. The quack had a "clinic" . . . and a million dollar racket. It's big business. When you need medical advice, start with your family physician.

Q. Is cancer contagious?

A. So far as is known, human cancer cannot be passed from one person to another by contact.

Q. Can you inherit cancer?

A. Experts say that cancer in several members of one family can occur just by chance. Although it's hard to pin down, heredity does seem to play a part, at least in certain types of cancer. As one doctor explains it, all we inherit from our parents is a tiny blob of substance which has neither eyes nor ears nor mind nor musical talent nor cancer. All it has is the ability to develop these things.

Material in MEDICAL MIRROR is based on the published findings of various doctors. Reader's questions are welcome and will be answered anonymously in this column whenever possible. Letters can not be answered individually.

Negro Cardinal?

His Excellency, Bishop Joseph Kiwanuka, first African Roman Catholic bishop consecrated since St. Augustine's times, has been a bishop of the diocese of Masaka, Uganda, for 19 years. He was consecrated in Rome by His Holiness Pope Pius XII in 1939 shortly after Pius' election as Pope. There is speculation that at the next consistory Bishop Kiwanuka may be named as the first Negro cardinal in the church's history.

For 'Sommers Jury

200 Are Called But 12 Chosen

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two hundred persons will be on call for selection of the final trial jury of 12 when the Sommers bribery-conspiracy case opens in Assize Court May 1 before Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson.

Sheriff Edwin W. Wells said each of the eight accused—four individuals and four companies—can challenge 12 panel members, making a total of 96 the defence can rule out. The Crown can challenge a similar number.

Former British Columbia lands and forests minister Robert Sommers is charged with lumber company executives C. D. Schultz, John M. Gray and H. W. Gray with bribery and conspiracy to accept bribes. Companies accused are C. D. Schultz, Evergreen Lumber Sales, B.C. Forest Products and Pacific Coast Services.

May Concede on Summit Talk

Soviet Stand Weaker?

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. officials saw signs Saturday of some success in the West's stand against Soviet pressure to hold a quick, showy, ill-prepared summit conference.

They said Russia's "instant summit" propaganda appears to be losing its appeal in the face of Western insistence on laying the groundwork for a meeting that could lead to results.

And further, they said the Russians seem to be moderating their high-pressure drive for a summit meeting by June.

Of particular interest at the state department were these hints:

COCKTAIL PARTY

1. Moscow reports quoting Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko as saying the only important consideration is that meetings of some sort be held soon. This statement, reported made at a diplomatic cocktail party, was interpreted as possible evidence that the Kremlin might be willing to accept a delay in the meeting of top leaders.

2. Soviet party boss Nikita Khrushchev's statement, in a March 14 speech, that U.S.-Russia had been insisting that leaving nothing for lower levels Soviet talks "on any level" could only a summit conference could to do but work out procedures go into East-West problems deal with the actual problems, for a summit talk.

Promise or Performance?

LAST year, when the world trade recession was nine months under way, the Liberals were in office at Ottawa. They devised a pre-election budget with "goodies" for the people; all of six undivided dollars more for old-age pensioners, $100,000,000 in a lump sum for Canadian culture, national health insurance "when," and so forth. They were turned out of office on June 9 and lost control of Parliament; yet stood in their places to defend that budget, which the Progressive Conservatives only had time to modify in minor particulars. Now, says Mr. Lester Pearson, that was all wrong; there should be a six-weeks' tax holiday, and $400,000,000 must be handed back to the people so that they can spend Canada's way out of the recession. What would Mr. Coyne think of that?

Plead as they wish, the Liberals are tied to their record in governance. Every major external and internal policy which they swore by nine months ago arises to confute them now. In addition, it is clear that they attempted to conceal the real state of the nation's economy by stating last June that there was no recession, that more people were employed than ever before and at higher wages, and so on. So the truth caught Canada unawares, and this factor as much as any other led to the rejection of the Liberals at the polls in their outright defeat last year.

By contrast, in this election the Progressive Conservatives are not talking about dollars so much as about human beings. Dr. Sidney Smith in Victoria last week emphasized the asset value of Canadian youth. Prime Minister Diefenbaker has been talking with and listening to farmers, laborers, fisherfolk and all categories of citizens from one end of Canada to the other. The Progressive Conservatives have postulated no "cure" for a world-wide recession. They are making no fantastic promises in barter for votes. They are saying the same things today as they said last time and asking for a strong mandate to carry on with the reliable start that they have made in office, through actions which speak for themselves.

Confusing Street Names

IF the newly constituted intermunicipal committee is looking for something really worthwhile to do, here is a suggestion. Why not undertake a thorough revision of Greater Victoria street names? Certain historical inexactitudes were mentioned by an archivist the other day as inviting correction during the Centennial Year, but errors in spelling and such like are by no means the only bad features of Victoria's mystifying collection of street names.

To begin with there are numerous duplications and near-duplications. To mention just a few: there are two Agnes Streets, more than a mile apart; a McKenzie Avenue and a McKenzie Street, an Ash Road and an Ash Street similarly separated; Belmont Avenue and Belmont Road, Hampshire Terrace and Hampshire Road, Hollywood Crescent and Hollywood Place, and so on down a long list. Then there are boundary streets such as Dominion Avenue which, in the same block, has numbers in the 700 group on the city side and in the 1100 group on the Esquimalt side, and Arm Street where the jump is from 900 on one side to 1300 on the other. Equally confusing are the streets, of which the city has a great many, which for no apparent reason suddenly change name without changing direction.

The layout of Greater Victoria, unplanned for the most part, is perplexing enough without confounding visitor and resident alike with these mix-ups in names. The post office department has complained many times; and one does not need to be a stranger to the region to get oneself thoroughly bewildered trying to find an address in broad daylight, let alone after dark.

Where several municipalities are involved in a situation like this it is hard to get agreement on changes, no matter how obviously desirable renaming may be. The intermunicipal committee is the group best equipped to tackle a long overdue revision which, if done soon, would enable Victoria to begin the new century with a much more orderly street directory.

The Hong Kong Veterans

THERE are always amendments and adjustments needed to hold the balance for war veterans but one had thought that the basic claims in connection with the last war had long since been settled. It comes as a surprise to learn of the representations made this week to Secretary of State Fairclough during her Duncan visit on behalf of the former Hong Kong prisoners of war. Victorians remember well the return of these men to this city from Japanese captivity and the marks they bore telling of the hardships they had suffered.

It is not a good argument that because the United States or Australia made certain payments to their returned PoWs the same compensation should be effected in Canada. Many other considerations are involved and in large part the treatment afforded veterans of the last war on their immediate return compared favorably with any other country. If the Canadian veterans who were captured at Hong Kong have a real grievance, however, it should have been attended to long ago. It cannot be ignored that their case deserves particular consideration because of the nature of their ordeal at Japanese hands, much more severe than that attending their counterparts in Europe.

The broad programs of gratuity, educational and rehabilitative benefits affecting Canadian veterans immediately after the war were on a generous and satisfactory scale, but thereafter Liberal governments seemed to grudge every concession made to ex-servicemen. Veterans' organizations had to fight long and hard to maintain the equity and have specific grievances redressed. It is astonishing for instance to learn that such allowance for captivity as has been paid to Hong Kong veterans was forthcoming only prior to the last federal election. One imagines that the Conservative government, which already has shown its sympathy towards the changing problems of veterans, will view the special case of the Hong Kong men with the kind of indulgence that results in fair play. If they have legitimate cause for concern the Diefenbaker administration can be relied upon to see that they get a square deal.

Report to Readers — By Seth Halton

About the Writers

ONE of the most interesting, annoying and thankless jobs on a newspaper is editing the letters-to-the-editor column. It can, and frequently does, drive a man to distraction.

Only about half the letters we receive do not constitute a problem. They are well-written, reasonably brief and generally interesting.

Of the other half some are hopelessly illegible, some are libellous, some in bad taste. Some are far too long and bear footnote instructions that if the letter has to be cut, don't use it at all, please. Some repeat the same thoughts that have been repeated over and over again and have to be jettisoned for space reasons.

Quite a few have nom de plumes. (Many papers, rightly enough, will accept pen names for publication if the writer gives the editor his proper name confidentially; we, rightly enough, too, won't. We insist that the proper name and address be published.)

* * *

If I were a letter-to-the-editor writer, rather than a newspaperman, and wanted to get as many letters as possible into the paper, here are a few of the rules I would follow:

I would avoid subjects that are unarguable, like religion, and subjects which are not "in the news" like fluoridation, which at the moment is not in the news.

I would keep letters short. Two hundred words is a reasonable maximum.

If my letter did not appear in the paper I would not phone the editor to argue its case. He hasn't time to spare.

I would try to be fair to other writers by not sending five letters a week.

I would use a typewriter, and if I didn't have one I would see that my letters were clearly written and well-spaced.

I would make sure that the argument I presented was based on fact, not hearsay.

* * *

If all this gives the impression we don't welcome letters to the editor, it's the wrong impression. We do. Letters-to-the-editor are a traditionally widely read feature, and we place a high value on widely read features. They also serve as a guide, to some extent, to our own thinking and the wishes and thoughts of our readers, which is a very useful help.

Our only regret is that we haven't space for more. But as a Toronto editor said the other day, we have a problem. Some citizens want to read all the news of the city, businessmen want the market news, politicians the political news, teen-agers the Presley news, students the international news, sports fans the sports news, women the fashion news . . .

And there's only so many pages.

Thinking Aloud

". . . of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

IN the last volume of his history of the English-speaking peoples Churchill says of nineteenth-century politician Peel that he split his party but "there are greater crimes than that."

You'd never imagine so when a member crosses from one side of the House to the other; the hubbub is such you'd think he had committed an offence against mankind. Of course Churchill switched sides twice during his own political career so his point of view is to be expected.

He never was strictly a party man—a factor which undoubtedly contributed to his greatness. The country should always come before party, but it seldom does.

There was a lion in a cage outside my office window the other day. Victoria being a city of delightfully quaint sights. A crowd gathered round to watch her—she was a lioness, I believe—and with true disdain the lady turned her back on the gawkers. She was obviously bored stiff and who can blame her.

Some day perhaps someone will have the wit to put a human being in a cage and plunk it down in the natural habitat of animals. That will serve homo sapiens right.

I didn't have M. V. Chesnut in mind when recently I deplored the signing-off "God Bless" of local radio announcers, although he uses the phrase when ending his garden talks. Ches has written me note in rebuttal, however, and here it is:

"It never occurred to me before that it might sound strange to unaccustomed ears, for my father would always make his farewells in this manner and HIS father before him, and I always thought it to be perfectly good Old English.

"It seems to me that to commend one's fellows to God in bidding them farewell is a very old and almost universal custom. We do it all the time when we say goodbye, which is simply a contraction of 'God be with you,' and I don't think any irreverence is indicated in its use. The French say 'Adieu,' the Italians 'Addio,' and the Spaniards 'Adios,' all meaning to God, and carrying about the same connotation as 'God Bless.'

"With your Middle East service you'd know more about Arab customs than I would, but I seem to have heard that a reference to Allah is always included in a polite Arab farewell."

That is well said, but Arabs or Spaniards notwithstanding I still find the over-use of this radio invocation incongruous. To my ears it seldom seems to belong. Perhaps it's the tone employed in some instances and the radio matter preceding it that makes it strike me as being out of place.

One wonders what the Master of the Queen's Household in England has to do with pictures of Her Majesty being displayed in local political campaign rooms. If the Queen is on view here she is on view as Queen of Canada, and that is no business of some palace functionary in London.

If there is no Canadian law to bar the showing of her picture on such occasions in this country then no British immigrant has any propriety in raising the question. What they might do in England has no bearing on what Canadians might want to do about their Queen. Anyway the young Elizabeth's portrait helps to brighten an otherwise drab atmosphere.

It seems to me that some Britons coming here can't get it into their heads that Canada is no longer a possession of Britain but instead is a separate nation entitled to paddle her own canoe as she sees fit. That goes for any delight Canadians may take in showing their Queen's picture too.

Letter from London

The Village Idiot Comes to Power

By RICHARD L. THOMAS

SIR William Haley, former director-general of the British Broadcasting Corporation and presently editor of The Times, has made an outspoken comment on the undermining of public opinion in Britain. He was giving the Haldane Memorial lecture in London and raised a lot of points which apply with equal force to other parts of the world.

He said that "It is things to be taken off the air or kept out of newspapers that people at large want, and too many people challenge the proposition that it is always in the highest public interest to tell the truth. Public and private bodies seem more and more to wish to cloak their proceedings and to present accomplished facts only."

Sir William argued that four freedoms were in danger: freedom of information, freedom of dissent, freedom from victimization and freedom to exert influence; and that there was a long pressure line to enforce orthodox views—from the member of parliament who may lose his candidature at the next election if he deflects from the party line, to the trade unionist who will be "sent to Coventry" if his conscience does not allow him to obey his fellows' convictions, to the writer who may lose his platforms if he says something unpopular. He regarded it as the modern method of defending privilege.

* * *

"In the old days," he added, "there was the most widespread, violent and healthy reaction against these things. Now that the circle of their penetration has so immeasurably widened they seem increasingly to be met with acquiescence or apathy."

Another point of significance raised was the effect of the BBC on the nation. Its policy of insisting upon the presentation of the two sides of a conflicting argument brought the people face to face with the fact that there were at least two arguable sides to almost every question, but it might not always induce thinking but strengthen the national instinct for compromise.

Sir William provided all writers with a text. How many newspaper readers these days will admit truthfully that they enjoy reading writers with whom they disagree? How many people subscribe to newspapers or periodicals with views diametrically opposed to their own, and how often are we influenced by what we want to think rather than what the facts should make us think?

* * *

Public opinion polls, so often held these days to be the voice of democracy, can be tragically misleading. What can be more basically dishonest than the question "Do you think nuclear weapons should be abolished?" Is there anyone who does not? But to use the answer as a political argument against the manufacture of nuclear weapons is fundamentally dishonest. Yet that is the sort of emotional reaction all too frequent in Britain today. Most people would say that they were opposed to smallpox but only the few are opposed to vaccination where a mild form of the disease effects immunity.

The day of Voltaire's "Though I disagree with every word he may say but with my life shall I defend his right to say it" has gone. Far too many modern artists instead of addressing themselves to the problems of life on a wide canvas are content with tiny vignettes of the lives of irrational and distorted individuals which the semi-educated mass accepts almost as normal. In an age when film stars are known by the number of their marriages, in which divorce is an accepted social custom, in which bribery and corruption in the form of "jobs for the boys" are accepted and in which criminals lend more and more to be glorified, it is hardly surprising that public opinion is undermined.

* * *

It may also be added, amidst a howl of protests from "lovers of democracy" that nothing could be more absurd than that the village idiot should have as much say in the government of the country as Sir Winston Churchill. It is not altogether surprising that the idea should be abroad that it is best to keep things away from the public because of the distortion and misinterpretation given to facts by people incapable of thinking.

The welfare state is the prime example. Almost everyone calls it "free." This is free and that is free. In fact it costs the equivalent of $10,000,000,000 a year, but only because one-twentieth of the cost is paid by direct contributions and only one-fortieth by the individual (the rest is paid by the employer) it is not difficult to understand how the "free" illusion is perpetuated.

The point may be taken that in other times and in days when public opinion was virile and thoughtful it represented the views of intelligent and well-educated citizens. The remainder of the people — the great illiterate masses were silent. Today in place of the illiterate masses we have a half-educated mass and a much more patronizing intelligentsia. Universal sufferage has given the teenage stage-door swooner the same political power as the chancellor of a university, a doctor or an engineer. The result is that the political parties have to adjust themselves to attract the least intelligent members of the community, most of whom are completely incapable of objective thinking or placing any moral value on a policy.

Thus we have the "Ban the H Bomb" campaign with the masses rallying to the banners. We have campaigns to reduce the contributions to the welfare state, any suggestion that benefits should be reduced is political dynamite. We have statesmen torn between what they know to be right and political opportunism. We have so many people afraid to utter their real thoughts because it may not be expedient.

* * *

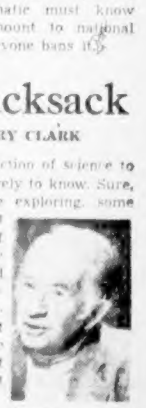
Every journalist knows the knowledgeable man who starts off an answer to inquiry with "You mustn't quote me. I daren't say what I really think." I had a good experience myself the other day. I asked a wartime cabinet minister if he thought British possession of the H bomb was a deterrent. "Of course it is!" he snapped then added. "Don't dare quote me or I'd be finished—but do you really think that we would have dared to use the atom bomb against Japan if there had been the slightest chance of reciprocation? Of course not!"

There you have it. It is a good, strong, sound argument — but its truth suggests an element of cowardice, of moral wrong, a confession that we really should not have done it, but no active politician would dare use it because mass psychology would be affronted. The atom bomb in those days was a noble weapon which saved millions of lives by making unnecessary the mass assault on Japan. It has become wicked, wrong and untenable because it could now be used against us. And every "Ban the H-Bomb" fanatic must know that it is tantamount to national suicide unless everyone bans it.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

IT IS not the function of science to foresee. It is merely to know. Sure, science does some exploring, some speculating. But foreseeing is one of the things science can not be expected to do, other, perhaps, than foreseeing comets, at which they are pretty good, except when a new comet comes along.



If science could foresee, can you imagine it allowing us to get into the pickle we find ourselves in with regard to electric power? There we are gathered together in clusters of millions, or in hundreds or tens of thousands, in cities and towns, swarmed so snug together we might be mistaken, at a little distance, for a swarm of bees.

And in these swarms we have scientifically built up a social, industrial and domestic structure that is dependent, almost 100 per cent, on electric power.

It would not take a city-destroying hydrogen bomb to finish us. Just a few quite small bombs on a few generating centres, and where would we be? No light, no oil furnaces, no gas furnaces, no stoves, no radio, no TV, Aha. No oil, no gas, no gas pumps, no bakeries, no dairies. No trains, no signals, no telephones, no street lights, no traffic lights. No factories, no newspaper presses, no elevators, no street cars.

Why, I bet there are not ten old axes per city block, nowadays.

Axes, that is, for cutting down trees out in front, or chopping up the furniture for a little fuel.

One thing about axes, they aren't scientific.

Time Capsule . . . — By G. E. Mortimore

They Waited 16 Years

THE Reichstag gave Adolf Hitler power to govern Germany as dictator, 25 years ago.

The Socialists objected, but they were snowed under in the Reichstag, 441 to 94.

Hitler's mandate to govern by decree was for a four-year term. In practice, he never intended to let go of it. For the Reich, the light of democracy had gone out.

In the United States, the long drought was over. A bill legalizing the sale of beer and wine with an alcohol content of 3.2 per cent became law, with the signature of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Four British subjects had been charged with the sabotage of electrical machinery which they had helped to install in Russia. Five Russian employees of a British electrical company were charged along with them. An international incident boiled up as Prime Minister Ramsay Macdonald of Britain lodged a protest.

ALL officers but one of the Fifth Regiment, Canadian Artillery, resigned in protest 50 years ago against lack of government support.

They said they had been promised a six-inch gun for drill, in 1898. Sixteen years later the gun still had not arrived.

Lieutenant-Col. Hall, Majors Hibben and Currie, Capt. Angus and other officers said they had no course but to resign.

Phil Oberlander, Bohemian big game hunter, charged that animals of B.C. were being slaughtered wholesale in defiance of regulations.

In Lillooet district a trapper had boasted of shooting a bull and three cow elk simply to get bait for poisoning wolves, on which there was a $15 bounty.

"WE regret that some malicious persons have lately been laying poisoned food about the streets, probably for the purpose of destroying dogs," the British Colonist reported 95 years ago.

"Several parties have, within the last few days, lost valuable animals, and they have died in convulsions exhibiting unmistakable symptoms of strychnine. The practice should be (stopped) . . . Members of the several wild tribes of Indians visiting the city are as liable to eat the poisoned food as the canine race . . . Druggists should be careful as to whom they sell strychnine.

Letters to the Editor

With Revulsion

It was with revulsion that I read the article pertaining to compulsion which was suggested by the parks commissioner whereby property owners who do not pay boulevard tax be compelled to maintain their boulevards.

I happen to be one of the many taxpayers who maintain a boulevard in front of my home, but so does every person in our block whether a property owner or a tenant. I believe I can say without fear of contradiction that our self-maintained and self-constructed boulevard is equal to any in the city for neatness and maintenance.

But who created the boulevard? Who hauled the top soil, who bought and planted the grass seed, who buys the weed killer, who uses the power, all summer, and who pays for from our own water supply? Every resident in that block. Did we get any help from the commissioner? Absolutely not. Do we get any thanks from the city or a slight reduction in our taxes which I think we deserve? No, we do not. In fact the eye sore of the street is the two strips of boulevard fronting two empty city lots which are over run with morning glory and high weeds.

I suggest the parks commissioner check up on a few strips of city-neglected boulevards and use a little of his compulsion to clean them up. I further suggest he hand out a little praise for citizens such as we are for the time, money and effort we have donated to beautifying our street.

Another thing: how about the aged or the sick who cannot maintain their boulevards? What does the commissioner intend to do about them—put them in jail?

Leaders All

No matter what party gives utterance, let the record be straight and true. Our highly respected Harold Winch has described parliament under Prime Minister Diefenbaker as a "dictatorship ruled by an egoist." Nothing could be farther from truth.

It is plain to any observer that John Diefenbaker is a "leader" type imbued with sincere and earnest intention. This places him in the same category with the beloved father of Harold Winch himself. John Diefenbaker thus far has gathered the reins of government and in minimum time under handicap has shown his mark of statesmanship.

"Words" cannot take away nor break down durable traits of men of this calibre, amongst whom can be listed Louis St. Laurent, Ernest Winch, John Hart and, if he will eat his words, Harold Winch, could enter the eligible prospects. Canada needs such men!

Prayer for Peace

May I make a comment on the ideas of Sir Stephen King-Hall and the Bishop of Coventry, as reported in your column of March 14 headed "Red Rule Better Than War." There could be an alternative, better than either. All the suggestions are too passive.

"Physical violence has outlived its usefulness as the main technical force in defence strategy" and "One nation may have to say quite firmly, and with supreme courage, 'We will no longer continue to manufacture atomic weapons'." Quite true as far as it goes, but the negative is not enough alone.

Why not bring in the strength of the positive, and replace weapons by prayer? Let us have supreme faith, as well as supreme courage; and if we call ourselves "Christians" behave as such nationally.

I suggest that the Christian churches throughout the world call great mass meetings of their people weekly to prayer for peace. If we do away with armaments we must replace them with something else, in order to keep peace and freedom together.

Expensive Lesson

As the federal election campaign draws to a close it would be wise to make a fundamental observation. It is clear that neither the average citizen nor the average businessman can afford to have the current recession worsened or even continue as at present. Lester Pearson's program of an immediate "shot in the arm" by tax cuts is the only means of achieving quick results and this view is supported by the U.S. government's decision to follow the same plan.

Increased trade into our present markets and development of new markets is the only long-range means of preserving our standard of living. It should be obvious by now that Toryism is and always has been dedicated to placing restrictions on trade rather than encouraging its expansion. We cannot afford another expensive lesson in Toryism just for the sake of 'giving John a chance.'

Canadian corvettes . . . failure at sea?

A Jarring Appraisal from Britain:

Did Canada Help in Atlantic War?

Severe criticism of the Royal Canadian Navy's role in fighting the German U-boat menace in the North Atlantic during the Second World War has whipped up a storm of protest from navy men both past and present in this country.

The criticism came from Capt. Donald Macintyre of the Royal Navy in his book "U-Boat Killer," now on city newsstands. Here is an excerpt from the book published by Avon Publications, Inc., of New York:

"Some convoys were severly mauled and suffered losses in double figures and in each case the escort was either, for some reason or other, weak in numbers, or it was composed of an inexperienced and undertrained team. The majority of the latter came from the Royal Canadian Navy.

"During 1941 the Atlantic along the east coast of Canada, and the ports of Newfoundland became pouplated with a motley collection of warships manned largely by landsmen whose homes were perhaps a thousand miles from the nearest sea. Discipline was weird and wonderful, equipment was ill-maintained and training in its use sadly lacking. These ships were units with which to make a show on the operations room maps, and perhaps to give a semblance of security to convoys which would have otherwise gone unescorted, but they were little more.

"I am a great admirer of Canada and the Canadian people but no account of the Atlantic battle would be complete without reference to the quality of some of the warships under whose escort merchant convoys often had to sail. The Canadian effort to produce a navy and so to help their hard-pressed brothers in the RN and the USN was magnificient, but it would have been more valuable if quality rather than quantity had been the aim.

Worst Travesty

"The appearance of many of these travesties of warships was unbelievably dirty and unseamanlike, but all records in this respect were broken by one corvette which was sent to me at Argentia from the Canadian base at St. John's for a 'shake up' though this was normally not part of my duties.

"This ship arrived with 'We Want Leave' painted on the side of her superstructure and I was therefore only a little surprised when my staff anti-submarine officer, Lt.-Cmdr. Kidston, came back from a visit to her with a look of horror on his face. He found the ship's company hammocks were left permanently slung on the mess decks —'In case they get tired during the day,' said the captain. A glance at her depth charge armament showed the charges were for the most part rusted into their housings though kept primed and armed.

"The first step was to get these weapons set to 'safe,' a job undertaken with the utmost trepidation by my gunner. She was then sent to sea, with Kidston embarked, to do a little simple training.

Abandon Ship!

"Proceedings opened with the ringing of the alarm bell to get the men to their Action Stations. This achieved only a brisk display of Abandon Ship Stations. They finished with the firing of one of the suspect depth charges which lived up to its appearance by exploding close under the ship's counter on impact with the water. However with guidance and informed instruction, two things inevitably in short supply in a suddenly expanded service, this ship improved out of all recognition.

"Very understandably, the RCN were determined that their ships should operate as soon as possible in purely Canadian formations. From the point of view of successful prosecution of the war at sea this was unfortunate. Canadian groups were not until a late stage of the war in a state of efficiency which enabled them to meet the U-boats on equal terms. Their communications were bad, their radar was less efficient than that fitted at the same time in British escorts and they lacked the excellent intensive training facilities which were available in the U.K.

"On one occasion I took over the escort of a convoy from a Canadian group in thick fog which persisted for the next two days. My radar screen showed throughout this time a ship close astern of the convoy which was presumed to be a straggling merchant ship, but when the fog finally cleared it turned out to be one of the Canadian escort group which had not only not received any of the signalled orders from her leader to leave the convoy, but had failed to record on her radar screen the arrival of my group and the departure of his comrades.

"Such a ship was hardly likely to be much of a menace to the enemy in a night attack. With such material it was folly to assume responsibility for the defence of valuable convoys.

Disastrous Losses

"The tale of losses speaks for itself. September, 1942: nine ships torpedoed from a Canadian-escorted convoy. October, 1942: seven from a convoy with mixed American and Canadian escort. November, 1942: 13 ships sunk, escort Canadian, and again in December, 13 ships sunk from one Canadian escorted convoy.

"It is true that a few British-escorted convoys suffered heavily during this period, but whereas these were exceptions which only served to drive home the lesson that only good teamwork and a high degree of training could achieve success, with the Canadians it was a melancholy fact that almost every voyage at this period was a tale of disaster and sunken merchant ships.

"Some splendid successes were indeed achieved by the Canadian escort vessels in the Atlantic.

"Too often, however, actions in which the Canadian escort groups were involved were tales of wild and confused fighting through nights made hideous by the glare of burning ships and the deadly explosions of torpedoes."

Itch Powder for Nazis

Ingenious War

(From The Manchester Guardian)

On learning that the British sent quantities of itching powder to resistance groups in Europe to be sprinkled on German uniforms in the clothing factories, one is tempted to say that the last war was won on the playing fields of St. Trinian's. But the Inter-Services Research Bureau, who conceived this ingenious piece of anti-personnel warfare, could be savage in their methods.

Part of the alarming story has now been told in "Sabotage," published by Werner Laurie, a tribute to the work of Lt.-Col. J. Elder Wills, by Leslie Bell. Explosive banjos, cakes of soap filled with pure metallic sodium and tire-busters, mass-produced, were typical weapons from Col. Wills' arsenal.

He had worked before the war in the film industry, where he learned that skill in camouflage which is essential to saboteurs and spies. From his Kensington headquarters he directed the production of devices like artificial dead dogs, to be stuffed with high explosive and floated down enemy canals, gloves fitted with bogus fingerprints (these are not foolproof the police will be glad to hear), and ink that was quite invisible except under an infra-red light.

Col. Wills studied the psychology of his enemy with deadly attention. On a trip to the Far East he learned that the Japanese had a loathing for snakes and a liking for souvenir wooden statuettes. He therefore produced explosive "snakes," which Japanese lorry drivers could not resist crushing, and "Balinese dancing boys" timed to explode on the troopship back to Japan. Mr. Bell frequently calls the enemy stupid for being taken in by these devices, but most readers will be more impressed by the fearful ingenuity of the British—and their dedication to "total war."

Lesson from Soviet Schools

Good Means, Bad Ends

A lucid statement on "What We can Learn From the Soviets About Education" is given by Dr. Murray G. Ross, vice-president of the University of Toronto, in the text of an address prepared for the Welland Chamber of Commerce. His main general point is that there are aspects of

(From The Edmonton Journal)

* * *

Russian education, such as the rigid state of planning and control, which are quite out of keeping with our political and social philosophy, but certain other aspects from which we can draw useful lessons.

". . . I am not at all sure that a careful study of Soviet education would not lead us to conclude that they have developed vastly improved means for achieving unimproved ends."

Dr. Ross itemizes several aspects of Russian education worth our attention.

One is the greater diversity of education opportunities for boys and girls after they have finished secondary school. In Canada, as he notes, we seem to have become imprisoned by the idea that a high school graduate must either go to work or to university. Among the other opportunities provided in Russia and rare in Canada are semi-professional schools for technical training, for physical culture and for studies in the fine arts. The training of technicians, Dr. Ross holds, should not be a university function. It demands separate schools.

Another Russian virtue, though wedded to excessive emphasis on scientific and technical subjects at the expense of the humanities, is the rigorous and challenging nature of the secondary school curriculum. Ours is much too easy for able students, in the view of Dr. Ross and many others.

Ironically, he notes that our educational system, based on a philosophy of freedom and initiative, seems to be producing adults who are fundamentally conformists with standardized tastes nd preferences. One reason for this probably is the granting of too much freedom to children too early, coupled with a failure to develop self-discipline.

Dr. Ross draws one final lesson from the Russian system respect for intellectual capacity. This, to a marked degree, he finds lacking in Canada.

Wrong Attitude

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — A wrong attitude toward driving is probably the No. 1 cause of traffic accidents in Washington according to Roy Retlach, chief of the state patrol.

One study showed that 60 per cent of the accident repeaters considered driving a right, while an overwhelming majority of the accident free drivers considered it a privilege.

The Case Against Whipping

★ ★ ★

(Excerpts from a brief on juvenile delinquency, to the social welfare committee of the B.C. legislature)

By PROF. W. G. DIXON
Director, UBC School of Social Work

It is obvious to all that British Columbia, with its good level of health and welfare services, has set its face in the direction of a positive approach to the problems of children and youth. But from time to time there are proposals for severe punishment and these usually involve severe corporal punishment for the young and varieties of punishment for their parents.

It would be very enlightening to all if a social scientist could present conclusive research material on the values or disabilities of corporal punishment as a preventive factor in delinquency. But to do that would call for a rather gruesome statistical venture.

The joint committee of the Senate and House of Commons on capital punishment, corporal punishment and lotteries, after hearing a good deal of evidence, decided it "does not believe that any convincing case was made for extending the use of corporal punishment to young offenders."

Robert Graham Caldwell, in a study of corporal punishment in the State of Delaware, showed that not only were many criminals (61.9 per cent) after their first whipping convicted of crimes, but a large number of them (48.8 per cent) were found guilty of major offences.

The British have a reputation for dispassionate appraisal and the Cadogan committee on corporal punishment, after a very exhaustive review of the whole problem, recommended abolition of caning of young offenders before the courts.

Even if we explore the subject in a subjective way, we can see that the advocacy of corporal punishment lacks a certain logic. Our whole culture is devoted to urging people to stand up for their rights, never to take abuse from anybody, and to resist dictatorial tactics. It is reasonable to assume that the offender brings all these attitudes to the whipping session and the result is revenge rather than rehabilitation.

On top of this, psychiatry has shown us that punishment can be very satisfying to the offender, although he may protest it at the time.

It seems unreasonable to expect the disturbed or immature offender to engage in an intellectual assessment of the possibility of punishment. The offender keeps going because severe punishment seems remote and can't happen to him.

The advocate of capital punishment and corporal punishment always advances his case on the basis of conjecture. Community catastrophe is predicted unless his proposals for punishment are carried out. It seems to me that the whole subject of death or severe bodily punishment for the offender is of such vast importance that their advocates should be called upon to make their case rather than simply deal in dire predictions.

Television Script Comes to Life In Plane Drama

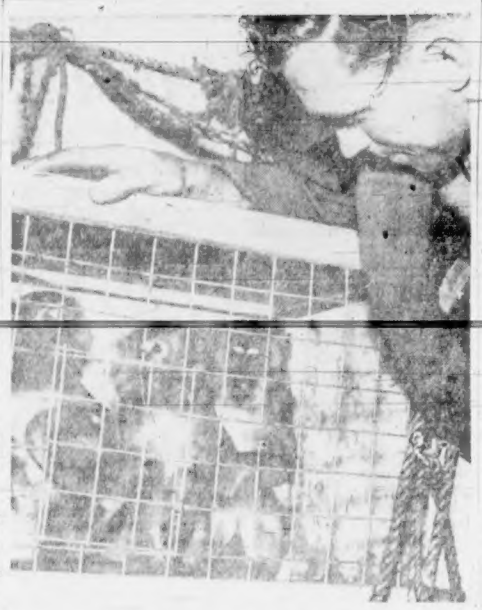
PHOENIX, Ariz. (CP) — A situation approaching the Flight into Danger plot of Toronto television writer Arthur Hailey caused a transcontinental airliner to make an emergency stop here Friday night with two crew members stricken by food poisoning.

Taken to hospital were co-pilot Albert Fisher and flight engineer Frank Accardi of an American Airlines' New York to Los Angeles plane which made an unscheduled stop here shortly before midnight. Both were reported in good condition.

An airlines' spokesman said the two crew members became ill after eating lobster which was served as the regular meal aboard the plane. None of the passengers or others in the crew were affected.

Hailey's play, which became a TV success and was later made into a motion picture, was a suspense drama about the plight of an airliner after both pilot and co-pilot collapsed from food poisoning, along with many of the passengers. The situation was saved by an ex-air force pilot among the passengers who hadn't eaten the flight meal and landed the plane.

At the time the play was presented on TV in the United States, airline sources pointed out that the situation couldn't happen in real life since various members of the crew are ordered to get their meals from different sources particularly the pilot and co-pilot.



Bite Can Be Deadly

At Toronto's Connaught Laboratories, where Salk polio vaccine is made, monkeys are believed to have caused the death of two lab workers. The monkeys often are carriers of encephalomyelitis, a disease fatal to man. David O'Hara, 38, and Ferdinand Jacubec are both believed to have been bitten by the monkeys and contracted the disease, for which there is no known cure.—(CPC)

Appeal Response Good

Old Eyeglasses Pour In to Club

Donations to the appeal for old eye glasses made recently by local Lions' clubs are pouring in at an ever-increasing rate, spokesman said last night.

"Everywhere I go people are shoving glasses in my hands," one Lion said.

Glasses of all sizes, shapes and conditions are among those donated to the appeal, including some at least 50 years old with tiny, odd-shaped lens.

The appeal is being conducted by Victoria Lions' Club, Victoria Chinatown Lions' Club, Esquimalt Lions' Club and Langford Lions Club.

Glasses will be sent to New York at the end of the appeal. Expert optical workers will sort and grade the lens and send them to backward countries where glasses cost too much for many persons to buy.

Appeal is for full sets of glasses, frames, single lens and cases. Donations may be left at any store or service station displaying the sign "Bank of Light."

'Army' Again Ponders New Old Men's Home

The possibilities of using the old Victoria residence, Mount Adelaide, overlooking Victoria harbor as an old man's home was again considered by the Salvation Army's Victoria advisory council at a meeting in the Citadel Friday.

Mount Adelaide was bequeathed to the Army by the late Mrs. Ada Matson.

The council was presented with three alternative schemes by John Wade of the Victoria architectural firm of Wade, Stockdill and Armour. These involved in the use by conversion of the present building; use part of the old building with new wings, and an entirely new building.

The council will make another inspection of the home and grounds before making a decision.

The Car Corner

This Girl's Got Class

By J. T. JONES

Isabella is a pretty thing, and lively too. She's smooth and beautifully built. She encourages indiscretions and then forgives them. The hitch is that Isabella is a car.

As such, though, she's in a class by herself. There are other [illegible] some of them very good. Some are just as fast, some can corner as well, some are as luxurious and well-finished, some are just as quiet, but I know of none that combines all these qualities, and more besides, with such stunning effect as Borgward's favorite daughter.

* * *

To get the statistics out of the way, the Borgward Isabella is offered with either 60 or 75 horsepower. It has independent coil suspension of all four wheels — by conventional unequal wishbones at the front and swing axles at the rear. Its four-speed, close-ratio transmission is synchronized right down to low and a joy to use. The car is light, at about 2,200 pounds empty, but very rigid and free of shakes and squeaks even on bad roads. Steering is moderately quick, at three turns from lock to lock, but the mild steering effect of the swing axles at rear helps out on tight corners.

* * *

When it comes to effortless covering of the miles, the Isabella (60-horsepower version) turned out to be literally tops. It finished my informal little trial stretch—a kinky, lumpy bit of the cutback over which the object is to go briskly but not riskily—in the best time I've ever recorded.

As I write this my stop-watch still has the reading: one minute, 31.2 seconds. The 1956 Corvette, best up to now, did it in one minute, 34 seconds.

* * *

[illegible] and effective. Because of the car's small wheels, they are capable of locking things up tight without extreme pedal pressure, which is something to be discreet about at highway speeds in any car. Under hard stopping there's a bit of tendency for the stern to walk about because of the aforementioned swing axles, but this amounts to nothing once the sensation is understood.

The same phenomenon appears on wavy pavement, but not on bad roads.

* * *

The Isabella's gearbox is the first I ever encountered with an audible synchromesh. It appears to be designed along the Porsche baulk-ring system, with which it is impossible to get the cogs anywhere near each other unless they are spinning at the same speed.

During downshifts there's a tiny, siren-like sound from under the floorboards as the synchromesh cones whirl the required gear up to speed. Going down into first gear at about 15 miles an hour, this whirl takes a second or so, and in the meantime the gear lever can't move. But after a moment it clunks into place, perfectly smoothly.

* * *

There are two faults in the Isabella one easily changed, the other not, and both totally unexplainable. First, I found it impossible to get my feet comfortably [illegible] firewall with nothing to rest them against. A neat sloping footboard could be installed very cheaply to take care of that.

But the crank for winding up the windows is in the most awkward possible spot—it can't be reached with the left hand on the driver's side, and it takes many turns of this difficult crank to roll the window up or down.

* * *

The Isabella is a sweet piece of machinery, and handsome as they come, and it should therefore appeal about equally to male and female members of the family. Its price puts it out of the true economy class, but it's worth what it costs.

Your Health Department

Threat to Sanitation Curbed by Training

This is one in a series of articles prepared in the public interest by the Victoria-Esquimalt Health Department.

Food sanitation is one of the largest services of the sanitation section of your health department. All inspection activities are designed to bring to the public safe food products.

Commercial food outlets such as butcher shops, fish stores and packing plants are most co-operative, partly because they realize improved handling and sanitation procedures will eventually be reflected in increased business.

Even the best food products can become dangerous through lack of proper refrigeration, careless handling, use of contaminated working surfaces and benches, lack of rodent and pest control, or through use of tools that cannot be properly sanitized. With the introduction of modern methods, sanitary inspectors now require complex technical skills.

HAZARDS REMOVED

Many former hazards of the food industry are no longer very common due to changing styles in equipment manufacture, modern packaging, and newer display units. But in spite of recent improvements in equipment the human element still enters the picture. Any food service is usually only as good as the personnel.

Particular emphasis has been devoted to workers in the restaurant industry, through a training program in proper food handling. This course of discussions, demonstrations and films on the best methods of preparing, handling and serving food is conducted for all persons working in the food industry, particularly restaurant employees. Marked improvement has been observed over the years as more workers take this course sponsored by the health department.

CONSTANT CARE

One of the most important features of the food industry supervised by your health department inspectors is that of refrigeration. Constant care must be taken to protect and refrigerate foods capable of growing disease and poison-producing bacteria. Products made of milk, jellied meats and similar foods require special attention. Not only do such foods require the highest standards of care in commercial food operation but also every householder should be extremely cautious with such foods. Many cases of "flu" or other stomach upsets could probably be traced to poor handling methods in the home. Such problems can occur in even the best regulated homes if some of these cited food products are carelessly handled or improperly stored.

HOUSEKEEPING

Other factors stressed by inspectors in their visits around the food industry are matters like personal hygiene of employees and general plant housekeeping. Staff members are all encouraged to maintain high personal standards of cleanliness through dressing rooms, locker facilities, uniforms and similar methods. Good housekeeping in a food plant is like good housekeeping at home, and done for the same purpose.

From general over-all cleanliness to detailed supervision of complex mechanical equipment, the sanitary inspector does his utmost to advise and guide owners in preparation and sale of food of the highest sanitary standard.

First Jet Liner In Canada in 1959

MONTREAL (CP) — Trans-Canada Air Lines said Thursday it expects to take delivery of its first jet aircraft in December, 1959. The plane, a four-engined Douglas DC-8, is to be used to train pilots and aircrew. It will go into passenger service at an unspecified date in 1960, the company said. TCA has ordered six of the 120-passenger craft.

'Destiny Has Run After Us'

NEW YORK (AP) — It's always tomorrow for Broadway's long-run champions.

That is the secret ingredient of theatrical success, insist Theresa Helburn and Lawrence Langner.

The Theatre Guild, a venture Miss Helburn and Langner helped start and have steadfastly tended since, this spring is celebrating completion of its 40th producing season on Broadway.

The Theatre Guild played a key part in creating today's touring setup, and helped pioneer major dramatic efforts in radio and television.

On Broadway it has presented more than 200 plays.

"Our destiny has constantly run after us," says Langner.

Victoria Dancer Featured

Victoria's Jacqueline Ivings will head the Can Can line in "Offenbach in the Underworld," one of the National Ballet of Canada productions here April 25 and 26. The Kiwanis-sponsored company of 76 dancers also will present "Swan Lake" in full, Schumann's "Carnaval," dances from "Sleeping Beauty" and Rachmaninoff's "Winter Night." Tickets go on sale at Eaton's April 11.

The Entertainment Parade

Music Outdoors

Victoria Symphony Orchestra, which completes its season with two concerts next weekend, will present an outdoor concert on the grounds of the Legislative Buildings Aug. 31.

The long-discussed project finally came about this week when the local Musicians' Union offered to underwrite the cost, won the co-operation of the symphony society and got the approval of the B.C. Centennial Committee. Hans Gruber will conduct; program details will be worked out later.

Music for the programs next weekend will be Beethoven's Fifth Symphony and Moussorgsky's "Pictures at an Exhibition." There will also be a brief ceremony recognizing Mr. Gruber's 10th anniversary as conductor, and refreshments will be served on stage to all.

Jerry Gosley's Smile Show this summer will be his biggest effort yet. He has already retained singer Irene Henderson, organist Reg Stone, comics Len Evans and Bill Curtis, dancer Margaret Perry and accordion player Ronnie Chisholm.

Impressario Gosley also needs versatile, young male and female dancers and short, original skits with a topical atmosphere. Those interested should phone 2-7792. The show plays the Atlas theatre three times a week from July 10 to Aug. 16.

* * *

Peter Ajello, an associate of the Drama Board of London, England, has been named adjudicator of the Southern Vancouver Island Drama Festival. It will be held in Oak Bay Junior High School April 15 to 19. Lineup of plays will be announced next week.

LYLE MOORE . . . scientist, too

This will be one of the better weeks of the live entertainment season, what with Anna Russell tomorrow (a sellout, it's reported), "Caine Mutiny Court Martial" each evening, and the Pacific Bible College choir in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Wednesday evening. Feature of the last event will be the award-winning Negro spiritual "The Creation" by Tom Scott.

Two recently-announced events for next month promise considerable variety within a period of 24 hours.

First, on April 11, the Men's Glee Club of Gonzaga University, Spokane, one of the better male choral groups in North America, will sing everything from Bach to Broadway and sacred to musical comedy songs at Central Junior High School. Rotary Club is sponsoring the group's first visit to Victoria in three years.

Leader of the group is Lyle W. Moore, who graduated from Columbia University as a scientist, but went on to take a master's degree in music education.

The next night, the Lions present something called "Alexander's Magical Circus," featuring a chap named Mandrake the Magician. It will be in the same school auditorium, and to publicize it, the magician is challenging any Victoria firm to build a small box from which he cannot escape. He's also promising to drive a car blindfold through the downtown area.

Train Dynamited 15 Killed, 85 Hurt

RANGOON, Burma (Reuters) — At least 15 persons were reported to have been killed and 85 seriously injured when rebels dynamited and derailed a passenger train 100 miles north of Mandalay, according to reports received here yesterday. The rebels, believed to have been Communists, were reported to have opened fire on the derailed cars.

Off the Record

Even Disc Jockeys Sick of Pop Music

By JIM TAYLOR

Disc-jockeys took a look at their own programs recently and apparently didn't think too much of what they saw.

Consensus of the first annual d-j pop convention in Kansas City was that they are now tied in the straight-jacket of the hit parade lists. Their programs have become so simple, set to such a rigid formula, that the d-js consider themselves in a fight for survival.

Two main points worthy of note were brought out. First, the d-js complained of "a tightly controlled broadcast format" to which they are required to stick to th "top 40" tunes.

* * *

Secondly, sparked mainly by a blistering speech by Mitch Miller of Columbia Records, the d-js fought against rock 'n' roll and all other programming aimed strictly at the juveniles.

As one put it, "We hate the stuff, but we gotta play it anyway because that's what the boss wants."

The claim was that all d-js have been formulized into electronic juke voices in which everyone sounds exactly alike. Topic of one seminar at the convention was, "Is the prime requisite of the disc-jockey the ability to count up to 40?"

* * *

All this has little to do with pop records right now, but the experts believe it will have in the near future, which is why it is mentioned here. With even the disc-jockeys fighting today's music, and the growth in popularity of LPs, it is entirely possible that the hit parade and "top 40" could be on the way out. Miller put it this way:

"You carefully built yourselves into the monarchs of radio and abdicated, abdicated your programming to the corner record shop; to the eight-to-14-year-olds; to the pre-shave crowd that makes up 12 per cent of the country's population and zero per cent of it's buying power, once you eliminate the pony trail ribbons, popsicles and peanut brittle."

* * *

Miller warned that the broadcasters were off base in aiming soley at teen-agers instead of the audience that wants variety, musicianship and a bit more sophistication in its music.

He pointed out that four years ago $7 out of $10 spent on records went for single discs. That figure has since ben cut in half while LP sales have doubled, because "as the public finds it can't hear the music it wants on single records on radio, it turns to LPs for home hi-fi sets.

"It must be more than just a coincidence that single record buying went into a decline at the very time the number of stations switching to the "top 40" format reached a new high."

Judging from the reports at the convention, the hit parades are going to have to improve or get out.

NEW RELEASES: The Platters, whose particular brand of music seemed on the way out, are making a strong comeback with a semi-rock version of "Twilight Time" . . . Then there is David Seville, who has followed "Cecilia" and "Gotta Get to Your House" with a laughable thing called "Witch Doctor" . . . Marty Robbins has a two-sided threat in "Stairway of Love" and "Just Married" . . . "Miss Thing" is a new one by the Silhouettes using much the same style of "Yip-yip-yip" pattern established in "Get a Job" . . . If you can afford it, don't pass up "The Duke Ellington Song Book," an album of four LPs sung by Ella Fitzgerald. List price in the U.S. is $19.92 . . . "I've Got Bells on My Heart" is tabbed for big sales, either by Jane Morgan or Don Cornell.

Poems Give Insight Into Mao

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two University of British Columbia professors are studying the poetry of Mao Tse-tung, Communist leader of China to gain an insight into his character.

Two of his poems have been translated from the Chinese and interpreted by Dr. Ping-ti Ho and Dr. Earle Birney, both of the department of English.

"He is a good poet," said Dr. Ho. "He has a sophisticated mind. It isn't very likely that a man of his intellectual character will be crude."

Dr. Ho said the fact that such a powerful leader is a poet is a factor in world politics.

The first, "Midstream," was written in 1920 and "reveals a revolt against traditional values."

The second, named "The Snow," was written in late 1945, and is a vision of the future of China.

To Partition—First Plan

By J. RALPH DALZELL

Many readers have encountered trouble when erecting frame partitions during remodeling because they failed to plan the details of the work correctly. The following suggestions will be helpful.

Some partitions (2 and 3 in picture A) intersect at 90 degrees. Trouble could occur if the backing were not provided so lathing or other surface materials could be applied. To provide the backing, spike a 1x6 board to the back of the intersecting stud. Then, as indicated in the picture, a surface will be provided.

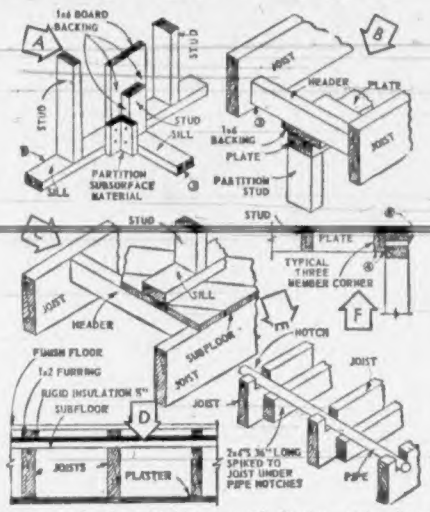
When the top of a frame partition occurs between the joists of a floor or between the rafters of a roof (picture B) headers and backing are required. First, spike 2x4 headers between the joists or rafters as shown, spaced 16 inches on centres. Note at 3 that the bottom of the headers must be above the bottom edges of the joists or rafters a distance equal to the thickness of the backing board. Spike a 1x6 backing board to the header as shown. The partition plate can then be spiked through the backing and into the header. This provides space to which the surface materials can be nailed.

When the bottom of a new partition, when constructed in an attic, occurs at a point between floor joists. See picture C. The rough flooring alone cannot provide enough support for the partition without risk of sagging. Install 2x4 headers spaced 16 inches on centres as shown to provide the proper support. Note that the headers must be under the subfloor and that the partition plate must be above the subfloor.

Three studs must be used somewhat as shown in picture F at a corner where two partitions meet. Note the space (5) between two of the studs. This construction provides backing (4) for surface materials.

When attics are remodeled it is wise to consider floor insulation so that little sound is transmitted to the rooms below. This is expensive and will not stop all sound transmission, but if extra expense is not a consideration, the insulated floor is worthwhile. The insulation can be placed over the subfloor as shown in picture D. Do not nail the insulation in place. Cut it to fit and make sure it covers all of the subfloor. Use either half or one-inch thick rigid insulation. Nail a 1x2-inch wood furring strip directly over each joist. The dead air space helps reduce sound transmission. Be sure to use high holding power nails long enough (at least 12d) to go through the strips, insulation, subfloor and well into the joists. This is important. Without proper nailing the floor might bounce when walked upon. Apply the finish floor (hardwood or plywood for use with asphalt tile or linoleum) to the furring strips.

When remodelling requires new plumbing and if notches shown in picture E must be cut in the joists, be sure to reinforce the joists as shown in the picture. Use 30d spikes so they can be clinched. Each of the reinforcing 2x4 pieces should have at least five spikes.



QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q—What causes paint to blister?

A—Almost all paint blistering can be traced to applying paint to damp or wet wood. Wood must be perfectly dry.

Q—What are the most popular paint colors for the home?

A—Americans are demanding more color, but the effect must be light and clean. Pastel yellows, corals, aquas, blues and wood tones lead the field of fourteen best selling colors for home decoration.

Q—When is a good time to plant grass seed?

A—During cool weather, early spring planting will allow the young grass plenty of growing time before dry summer weather.

Red Cross Half Way To Target

Public response to this year's annual Red Cross drive is very gratifying, T. L. McMaster, campaign chairman, said last night.

"We have almost reached the half-way mark towards our quota of $79,500," he said, adding that audited receipts totalled $36,713 yesterday.

"With a full week of canvassing still remaining we will surely reach our goal," he stated. "The canvassers and the general public are fully aware of the need for funds to maintain Red Cross services at home and abroad and are generously supporting the drive."

Lourdes Gathers Lame, Ill

LOURDES, France (AP) — The lame, the ill and pilgrims by the thousands gathered in this mountain hamlet Saturday for this week's commemoration of the miracle of Lourdes.

A hundred years ago Tuesday, says the Roman Catholic church, a little peasant girl saw a vision who told her:

"I am the Immaculate Conception."

The day was March 25, 1858. The peasant girl was Bernadette Soubirous. The vision, says the church, was Mary of Nazareth, mother of Jesus.

MIRACULOUS SPRING

The church says that after the child saw the vision and heard the voice a spring with great curing power sprang miraculously from a grotto.

Pilgrims stricken by disease will bathe in the spring, whose waters are said to have cured thousands.

Joseph Cardinal Roncalli, Patriarch of Venice and former papal nuncio to France, arrives on a new French Caravelle jet airliner Monday. He will consecrate a big underground basilica built especially for this 100th anniversary.

Beef, liver, kidney, tongue and heart are good for persons who require food with a high iron content.

Canadians Travel by Helicopter

Visitors Drop In—Literally

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UP) — Eight Canadian travellers literally dropped into a motel here for a night's sleep and parked their four shiny new Bell helicopters in an empty field nearby.

The motel was filled to capacity, but the desk clerk ordered rollaway beds for the travellers, refusing to turn away its first fly-in guests.

The eight members of Canada's Eastern Arctic Ice Patrol, landed their 'copters in a lot bordering the motel, checked in and casually asked if there was a good place to eat in the area.

The group left Fort Worth, Texas, Tuesday for Ottawa, and have been cruising over the country at 65 to 70 miles per hour during daylight. At sundown, they usually landed at a convenient airport for the night.

Nearing Columbus, William S. Glennie, chief pilot, radioed the others that they would stop when they found a "nice hotel." This meant that it had to be outside of town and have a nice large parking lot without too many trees.

The four aircraft, costing more than $71,000 each, will be used to scout for ice-breakers as far north as the 80th parallel within the next few weeks.

TORONTO (CP) — Imperial Oil Limited Friday announced it has stopped paying its dealers in Toronto allowances in an effort to end a gasoline price war among Toronto area service stations. Shell Oil Company also announced it will eliminate assistance to its retailers.

Round Table Runs To Easy Victory; Ties Track Record

MIAMI (AP) — Favored Round Table won the $110,900 Gulfstream Park Handicap yesterday and equalled the track record for 1¼ miles.

The Travis M. Kerr star, ridden by Willie Shoemaker, covered the distance in 1:59 4-5 as he finished ahead of Tartan Stable's Meeting and Brookmeade's Stable's Oligarchy in the six-horse field. He carried top weight of 130 pounds.

A prohibitive favorite, Round Table paid $2.40 to win and boosted his total earnings past the $1,000,000 mark, moving into third place behind Nashua and Citation on the all-time winnings list.

Logart, Akins to Appear At Boxing Investigation

By JACK CUDDY

NEW YORK (UP) — Tapped telephone conversations that preceded Virgil Akins' surprise sixth-round kayo victory over Isaac Logart Friday night will be featured evidence at a Manhattan criminal court grand jury hearing April 7.

Bible-reading Akins, who clinched a June shot at the vacant world welterweight title, has been summoned to appear at the hearing, along with Logart, their handlers and seven others.

Those summoned included Billy Brown, matchmaker of the International Boxing Club, which staged the scheduled 12-round elimination semi-final at Madison Square Garden.

Akins of St. Louis, an 11-5 underdog at ring time, floored [illegible] right brow and won a technical knockout at 2:53 of the sixth round.

Logart was heavily supported by the run-of-the-mill bettors, including New York's Latin-American colony. And the price favoring him lengthened from 7-5 to 11-5 Friday night. But there were persistent rumors that the "smart money" was coming in fast for Akins.

BET ON DISTANCE

It was learned later that heavy betting was on distance — whether the fight would go 12 rounds as scheduled. Bookies willing to bet the fight would go the distance put up $1 to every $3 wagered by bettors believing th fight would be stopped. Bettors willing to wager the fight would go 12 rounds put up $4 to the bookies' $1 that it wouldn't.

The sixth-round knockdowns appeared legitimate, and Akins' victory in the nationally televised bout was cheered by the 5,000 Garden spectators.

Victorious Akins, a former "in-and-outer" who had hung up his gloves three times, was just telling reporters in the dressing room Friday night that Bible-reading had spurred his comebacks, when a grand jury summons was delivered to his dressing room.

A spokesman for District Attorney Frank Hogan's office said "at least a dozen summons" had been served. But he insisted that those served at the Garden were "principally in connection with an investigation of boxing that has been going on for some time." He admitted "they may have something to do with Friday night's betting, but that would be secondary."

However, another authoritative source told the United Press, "unfortunate telephone conversations among persons connected with Akins and Logart — conversations tapped by investigators," caused the shower of summons. He said the tapped evidence will be used at the grand jury hearing, with permission of the New York supreme court.

Megantic Lake in Frontenac County, Quebec, was crossed by missionary fathers in 1640.

Chairman Julius Helfand of the N.Y. State Athletic Commission and president of the world committee which arranged the [illegible] tournament, said tersely: "I know nothing about the summons, and I have nothing to say at this time."

LEW HOAD

Australia's first-year tennis professional who got away to a fast start against Pancho Gonzales, Lew Hoad lost again to the world net king Friday night by a 6-4, 6-3 score. Gonzales cut Hoad's margin in their 100-game, cost-to-coast series to 21-20 on the strength of 10th win in his last 12 starts.

Big Payoff at Bowie

Whisk Tru Pays $464 In Scoring First Win

BOWIE, Md. (UP) — Deack Duncan, a 21-to-1 shot, won the $34,450 Governor's Gold Cup yesterday at Bowie but the 13,936 fans got a bigger charge when Whisk Tru won the fifth race and paid $464.00.

Whisk Tru, a four-year-old maiden making his 30th start, registered the highest mutuel payoff of the year in his 1958 debut. Jockey Warren Lane kept him in front most of the way and brought him under the wire two lengths to the good. Whisk Tru ran seven furlongs in 1.28 and paid $120.60 to place and $72.40 to show.

Mill River Stable's Washington, a nominee for all triple crown races, was an even money favorite in the Gold Cup, which drew nine three-year-olds.

Deack Duncan, bred and owned by J. S. Kelly, now has won two straight races. He placed second in his two other starts this year. In 1957, he had four seconds and three thirds in nine races but never entered the winner's circle until he took a maiden race at Bowie last Saturday.

This was the first day of racing at Bowie since Wednesday. The Thursday and Friday programs were cancelled because of a heavy snow storm. The track now has lost nine racing days because of bad weather during this "spring" meeting which started in February.

Vikings Return to Form— Need Best to Beat Buffs

By JIM TAYLOR

Victoria College Vikings, who beat Winnipeg Buffaloes Friday with only mediocre basketball, regained all of their old-time form last night. As things turned out, they needed every bit of it.

Buffaloes showed great improvement in the second game of the Western Canada junior men's championships, but still couldn't cope with the scoring power of the Vikings, who moved within one game of another title with a 61-57 victory.

However, the 550 fans that packed Victoria High School gym had a few worrisome moments. Buffaloes led by a single point at the half and were never far enough back to let Vikings let up.

Vikings spent the last two minutes of the game working a freeze and waiting for the openings as they held off the pressing Buffaloes.

Buffaloes, with big Al Keenan showing the way, stuck with the Vikings all the way except for a brief lapse early in the second half. In the end, it was poor shooting in the late stages that probably cost them the game.

BIG STAR

Keenan turned in the outstanding performance of the game. The 6'4" bucketman, who did almost all the clearing of the backboards for Buffaloes Friday, got help from Wayne Johnston in that department last night. The two combined to give the Buffs their share of the rebounds.

Keenan, bulky and somewhat awkward looking, was constantly coming out of a melee of players in the key to dunk one-handers. He also sank seven out of eight foul shots, finishing with 25 points.

But nothing could be taken from the Vikings, who were playing the type of ball they used in their march eastward last season.

Their win came on a team effort and tight checking. When they made mistakes that cost them points, they drove harder than ever to get them back.

Ken McCulloch and Bob Tomlinson each got 14 points. Waldo Skillings scored 11, and Ed Kowalyk had 10. Tom English was held to seven points, but turned in an outstanding game with his floor play and rebounding.

WHEN THEY COUNTED

McCulloch got 10 of his points in the second-half drive and his play was a big factor in keeping the Buffs down. Skillings also had a hot streak in the second half, hitting with his long, soft shots from the corner. Three of them came in one minute, when Vikings built up their lead from 37-35 to 45-37. That was probably the turning point.

Vikings had an apparently safe eight-point lead, 58-50, with four minutes left in the game, but Buffaloes kept pressing and cut it to five with just over a minute remaining when Keenan scored, was fouled while shooting, and sank the free shot.

Harvey Muth swished a long two-hander with 55 seconds left to make it 60-57, but Skillings was fouled by Bob Sheepish, made the shot good, and Vikings played possession ball until the buzzer.

The first half was close all the way as Vikings couldn't build up more than a four-point edge at any time. Buffaloes led by a single point on three occasions.

ERRORS HURT

Buffaloes also gave away two points to Vikings by stepping into the key too soon on foul shots. The first shots were missed in both cases, but the penalty shots were made good by the Vikings.

Chuck Leach turned in another outstanding game for Winnipeg, finishing with 11 points. Sheepish got 10 and Muth seven.

Third and possibly final game of the best-of-five series will be played Monday night at the Victoria High gym starting at 8.15.

Winnipeg — Meinhardis, Sheepish 10, Muth 7, Block, Chadbrack, Lewis 12, Robinson, Mackie, Johnston 4, Keenan 25. Total—57.

Third Line Romps As Cougars Score 4-3 Overtime Win

By GARTH WILTON

Victoria Cougars, beating an overtime jinx that has plagued them all season, scored after 4.06 minutes of extra time last night to defeat the Seattle Americans, 4-3, before 2,401 Western Hockey League fans at Memorial Arena.

The win was only the Cougars' second in 10 overtime contests this season. They have lost six and tied two.

The Clare Wakshinski-Barrie Ross-Art Hart combination provided the scoring punch for Cougars, figuring in all four Victoria goals.

Hart scored a pair, including the winner, and picked up two assists. Wakshinski, a rookie playing his sixth game with the Cougars, had a goal and two assists while Ross checked in with a pair of assists. Defenceman Carl Kaiser scored the other Cougar goal.

Scoring leader Guyle Fielder boosted his point total to 105 by scoring twice for the Americans. Don Chiupka scored the other goal, his 15th of the season against his former mates.

FRANCIS GOOD

Emile Francis turned in an outstanding game in the Cougar nets, especially in the first period when Victoria took four of the five penalties. At one time, the Cougars were a man short for four straight minutes as Kaiser and coach Pat Egan took back-to-back penalties. The Americans swarmed around the Victoria goal but Francis turned aside everything they had to offer.

Hart got the only goal of the first period, sweeping in from the right boards to flip Wakshinski's pass over the sprawling Bassen.

Fielder got his pair around Wakshinski's goal before the second period was half over, then Chiupka put the Americans ahead for the first time at 11:41.

Kaiser was back two minutes later and the clubs started the third period all even at 3-3. Gordie Wilson had the best chance in the scoreless 20 minutes, hitting a post with Bassen at the other side of the goal.

SOFT GOAL

The winner was probably the easiest goal Hart will likely ever score. The speedy winger was skating in front of Bassen when Wakshinski's shot, the first for the Cougars in the extra period, deflected off him.

In last night's other Western Division game, goalkeeper Marcel Pelletier was the difference as Vancouver Canucks outscored New Westminster Royals, 4-3.

First United, Alberni Clubs Win Provincial Hoop Honors

Victoria First United Church boys and the girls from Alberni Residential School yesterday won provincial pre-midget basketball honors at the annual B.C. championship tournament, played at First United Fellowship Hall.

First United, coached by Busher Jackson and Harold Turner, won the final in the boys' division from St. Louis College No. 1 by a single point, 21-20.

Six teams—St. Louis College No. 2, Cordova Bay, Duncan and the defending champion Alberni team, in addition to First United and St. Louis College No. 1—were entered in the boys' division. Three were eliminated in the first round and the three winners then played a round-robin series for the championship.

First United downed St. Louis College No. 2 by a 34-6 score, Cordova Bay outscored Duncan, 35-19, and St. Louis College No. 1 thumped Alberni, 41-5, to enter the championship round-robin.

First United and St. Louis Bay, 30-11 and 27-15, respectively, before First United edged past the College team in the final.

In girls' play, defending champion Sooke, Alberni and Brentwood vied for the honors in a round-robin series.

WINS EASILY

Alberni won out, defeating Brentwood, 23-13, and Sooke, 27-15. In the other game, Brentwood bested Sooke, 14-9.

The three first-round losers in the boys' tournament played a round-robin consolation final. It was won by Duncan, which defeated St. Louis College No. 2 by a 26-12 score and Alberni by 21-8. In the other game, St. Louis College No. 2 won from Alberni, 21-8.

Robert Burrows of St. Louis College No. 1 was named the most valuable player in the boys' playdowns, while Doug Gregory and Barry Turner of First United and Richard Doney of Cordova Bay were given honorable mention.

Anne Greenwood of Brentwood was awarded the trophy as the most valuable player in the girls' playoff, with Barbara Smart of Alberni the runner-up.

Murrant Pads Lead In City Pin Rolloff

Len Murrant, runner-up in 1956, lengthened his lead last night in the Victoria zone ten-pin championships as he rolled 1,180 for the third six-game block to boost his total to 3,350 for 18 games.

Jack Fletcher remained in second place but his 1,104 series dropped him 82 pins off the pace and left him only seven pins in front of Andy Palmer, who moved up from fifth place to third with 1,136 at the Strathcona Alleys last night.

Biggest gain was Jack Lim, who finished with 200, 202 and 224 as he rolled a 1,207 series to jump all the way from 26th place to fifth. At 3,226, he now has a chance in the final six-game block, which will be played today at Gibson's Bowladrome, starting at 4 p.m.

The 15 leaders after 18 games:

Len Murrant—1,180 (2,170)—3,350.
Jack Fletcher—1,104 (2,141)—3,268.
Andy Palmer—1,136 (2,125)—3,261.

Mount Newton Third In B.C. Tournament

VANCOUVER—Kitsilano High School won the B.C. girls' high school basketball championship here Saturday night by defeating John Oliver High School in an all-Vancouver final, 51-35.

Fifteen-year-old Dianne Beach turned in a spectacular 32-point performance to lead the Kitsilano team. Earlier in the day, Miss Beach scored 21 points when Kitsilano defeated Ladysmith, 45-27, to reach the final. In the first game on Friday, Miss Beach scored 24 points, and her 77 points for the three games made her easily the tournament's standout player.

In the consolation-round final, Mt. Newton High School of Victoria won third place by outscoring Salmon Arm High School, 26-18. In earlier rounds, Mt. Newton defeated Abbotsford, 42-31, and Salmon Arm won from Mission, 20-7.

Wheaton Loses In B.C. Final; Breaks Record

A Canadian swim record was shattered three times, twice by Bob Wheaton, in the B.C. open swimming championships at Crystal Garden yesterday, but the 16-year-old star of Victoria Y Swimming Club lost the event.

The battle between Wheaton and Ed Cazalet of Vancouver in the 200-yard medley for boys 15 and 16 was the high point in the 34 swimming and three diving events.

Cazalet, 16, won it for Vancouver Amateur Swim Club in a record time of 2.22.4. Wheaton was second in 2.22.9. Wheaton had beaten Cazalet in the morning heats of the event, his time of 2.24.8 breaking the former record of 2.25.0, set by Bill Slater of Dolphin Swimming Club.

However, Wheaton was informed yesterday that he will be one of B.C.'s representatives at the Canadian trials for selection of the British Empire Games team at Montreal April 5-7.

Sally Holland of Victoria Y has also been named for the trials but as something of an alternate.

Howard Firby, coach of the Canadian team, explained that eight boys and five girls had been selected by the B.C. section of the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association to compete at Montreal.

However, because the amount of money available for the trip is not yet determined, a "must" list of the top six was made up. The other seven, including Miss Holland, are on a lower priority list but will go if money is available.

Wheaton, Miss Holland, Cazalet and Bruce Warburton of Victoria Y were among the stars of the championship gala, which had a record 237 entries.

BREAKS RECORD

Miss Holland won the senior 100-yard freestyle and the 100-yard butterfly. Warburton clipped nine seconds off the Canadian record while winning the 100-yard freestyle in 56 seconds.

Cazalet came second in the event, and also won the 100-yard butterfly for senior men in 1.03.8. Warburton, 16, was third in the 100-yard breaststroke.

Eilers Defeat UBC, 82-79, In B.C. Final

VANCOUVER — Vancouver Eilers reached the Western Canada senior "A" men's basketball final Saturday night with a thrilling 82-79 win over University of British Columbia Thunderbirds in a game which needed three overtime periods to decide.

Birds trailed at one stage by 16 points but fought back to tie the score at 57-57 when Ed Wild sank a shot from the corner with less than a minute left. In the first overtime period Eilers got a six-point bulge but again the Birds came back to tie with Barry Drummond's tying shot in the air as the gun sounded.

Drummond tied the game again in the last seconds of the second overtime period but Eilers weren't to be denied in the third extra period.

Eilers—Gailloux 5, Tait 15, Forsythe 4, Krego 1, McLeod 9, Berg 30, Mullins 16, Lewko 2.

UBC—Drummond 18, Wild 15, Stephens 15, Winslade 9, Martin 7, Pederson 2, Levy 11, Dumarsque 2.

Nanaimo's Clippers Win Coy Cup By Edging Trail in Second Game

NANIMO (Special) — Nanaimo Clippers won the B.C. intermediate hockey championship and the Coy Cup for the second time in three years here last night, holding off a third-period rally for a 7-6 win over Trail Smoke Eaters.

Victory gave the Clippers the best-of-three series in straight games. They took the opener, 5-4, here Friday night.

Clippers almost blew a 6-2 lead as the Smokies fired two goals in the late stages of the second period, and outscored Nanaimo, 3-2, in the final period.

Aussies Scramble to Win; B.C. Again Proves Tough

Rugged Action at Macdonald Park

Typical of the rugged action which marred yesterday's exhibition rugby game between Australia's Wallabies and the B.C. All-Stars at Macdonald Park is evident above as Aussie centre Jeff Dix (2) jumps a loose ball. Hard-tackling Wallaby forwards hold back two B.C. players in an effort to give Centre plenty of protection. By IAN GLENDAY

Australia's touring Wallabies shook, trembled, then ground down a determined B.C. All-Star side in the second half, scrambled to a 17-11 comeback victory at Macdonald Park yesterday in a vicious battle before almost 2,000 fans.

But the revenge-minded Aussies did little to prove their superiority over the provincial stars and they left for Calgary and the last leg of their world rugby tour with the stigma of one defeat and a narrow escape still fresh in their minds.

Determined to wipe out the sting of their 11-8 defeat at the hands of the B.C. team at Vancouver last Saturday, the Wallabies were jolted before-hand in scoring their second B.C. victory and evening the score against the provincial team.

It was the powerful and effective pack of the Australian forwards, particularly in the loose and a couple of errors in judgment by the B.C. backs that gave the tale of the game to the visitors.

Trailing 8-3 at half-time and disappointed even to be that close with the wonderful backfield talent on the Wallaby squad, the Australians came out for the second session with more power and began to put the squeeze on the provincial attack.

FORWARDS STAR

The Aussie forwards, the strong point of the visiting side, completely demoralized the fine B.C. pack and gave their effective backfield plenty of room to set up possible attacking plays.

B.C.'s stars who tackled well in the opening half and managed to keep inside with the Wallaby forwards were forceful play, couldn't cope with the rugged visitors after the intermission and in mid-field and hesitant play in the back field proved costly.

Two of Australia's second half tries came on short plays by the forwards, who snapped up loose balls and ran over B.C. had failed to clear the ball.

WEAK TREES

Wallabies' three-line, one of the weakest of the Australian team's troupe in Victoria made recent years, was more effective in the late stages and produced some fine runs. But generally the Aussie three-quarters missed many a good chance with poor passing and some appalling lapses in simple rugby principles of positional play.

Dix was a regular of the individual performances in the interests of put centre-mate Hall back to Henderson of the BC sidewalk quarterback figure in defeat who praised forwards Tony Mil[illegible] and Norma Hughes, and full-back Terry C[illegible] Jim L[illegible] Lan and Ron Lat[illegible] standing for the visitors.

Henderson's kicking was probably the biggest of the match. He went [illegible] record the time and again with his kicking [illegible] he provided 11 of the 11 All-Star points with his five penalty goals.

Henderson booted three penalty goals, including a [illegible] in the first half and converted the Ray [illegible] goal in the last half. Peter [illegible] scored after taking a pass from George [illegible] Alan MacLeod [illegible] Mike [illegible] and Mure[illegible]

It was the outstanding play of the Australian backfield that gave a perfectly executed play [illegible] the Aussies flat footed. Hall was always dangerous on the wing and the B.C. three-line of Hall, Salmon, Ted Hunt, Ray Gibbs and John Newton [illegible] rating as one of the strongest backfields ever assembled in the province.

NATIVE TREES

Thirty-one of the more than 100 tree species in Canada are native generally to coastal B.C. woods.

Catholics Face Ban From Aussie Rings

SYDNEY (BUP)—Boxing circles said last night that they had been informed that the Pope would act in the very near future to prohibit Catholics from participating in boxing bouts.

Rumors have been sweeping the Australian boxing world since a reference to a possible ban by the Pope was made at a recent mission by a group of Franciscan monks in Sydney.

During the mission one of the monks attacked boxing, and said that the Pope was considering action to prevent Catholics from participating in the sport.

Boxing circles here said that they were treating the report "extremely seriously." They pointed out that more than half of the boxers in Australia were Catholics. A ban by the Pope, these circles said, could kill boxing as a major sport.

Three-Point Lead

Veteran Moore Close To First Point Title

Dickie Moore, 27-year-old winger who shifted from the left side to the starboard side this season without slowing down, is all but assured of his first National Hockey League scoring championship.

Playing his fourth full season for Montreal Canadiens, Moore passed up two assists last night and goes into tonight's last game with a three-point lead over linemate Henri Richard.

Richard, [illegible] 21, although playing his [illegible] season, got a goal and two assists to close Moore's lead by a point but with only one game left he has only an outside chance to catch Moore.

Bathgate of the New York Rangers. He lost ground last night getting only one assist and goes into the last game trailing Moore by six points. Defending champion Gordie Howe, who missed seven games because of injuries, seems destined to finish in fourth place. He has 71 points.

Rugged Action at Macdonald Park

Typical of the rugged action which marked yesterday's exhibition rugby game between Australia's Wallabies and the B.C. All Stars at Macdonald Park is evident above as Aussie scrum half Des Connor passes a loose ball. Aussies Scramble to Win; B.C. Again Proves Tough

'Closed District Tactic'

When is Blacklist Not a Blacklist?

B.C. teachers object strongly to the terms "closed shop" and "blacklist" as used in connection with federation membership.

A. D. Ovans, B.C. Teachers' Federation general secretary, said yesterday what the federation does have is automatic membership.

By its terms a teacher must seek and receive BCTF membership after certification by the education department and after securing employment by a school board.

In a closed district a teacher may be employed only and unless he has first been admitted to the union in question, Mr. Ovans points out.

"Unfortunately for the teachers the real issues behind the current controversy have been completely lost sight of in the battle over tactics," he says.

"The federation has been under fire by critics for a policy of advising members not to accept employment in school districts where teachers are still dissatisfied with salary scales previously called 'black lists'."

School boards in the districts which have been closed have refused point blank to negotiate with B.C. teachers and have insisted local salaries in their areas be retained," the BCTF spokesman charges.

He said there was no relation whatsoever between membership and salary policy.

In the Middle East Tension Remains

NEW CRISIS!

By ROBERT NEVILLE

ANKARA—Nobody here in Turkey needs a crystal ball to predict that matters are again moving swiftly toward another big crisis in the Middle East. The rush toward the formation of rival federations of Arab states must inevitably times be a welcome sign that the peoples of this area had at long last realized that small nations are no longer viable components. But coming at this moment the latter for union can only mean that the nations are choosing up sides for the inevitable showdown.

BLEEDING B.C. GHOST

THIS IS A STORY about ghosts. First, let us recall an occasion 30 years or more ago when a nerve-shattered street-car motorman, whose identity is obscured by time, told friends he had run over a ghost. More than that, he had seen the truncated body roll past—or float past—his vehicle. Nobody else saw it. Nobody could confirm his strange tale. Nobody wanted to investigate it that dark night.

For days Bert Binny has been peering about the gloom of alleged haunted houses. He has been delving into records of weird happenings with a supernatural tinge. He has come up with some odd facts and figures and some even odder fiction. This is the first of a series of articles by a regular contributor to THE ISLANDER.

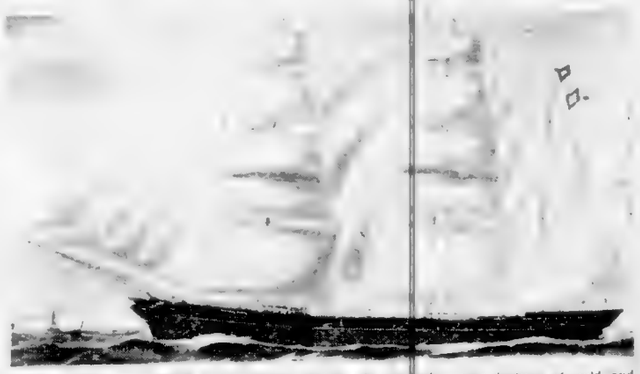
FED by the FRASER

IN THE CANOE COUNTRY, far up the Fraser, new gold diggings were drawing hundreds of miners to the sand and gravel bars in March, 1859.

One miner, who came down by the Eliza Anderson, saw 1,000 miners fighting upstream in the Fraser canyon in their flat-bottomed boats. In the next fortnight, he anticipated, a tremendous yield in raw gold would come from the river, for the water level was lower, allowing the more efficient working of claims.



Princess Royal docked in her canvass finery, she carried a vast fortune of gold and furs to Great Britain from the Pacific frontier 100 years ago.

WHEN SCOTS SKIRTED the POLE VICTORIAN WAS MESS BOY

THE TELEPHONE shrilled. "Long distance," said the operator. Over the wire from Sidney a cultivated, feminine voice said, "With the papers full of the Antarctic exploits of Sir Edmund Hilary and Dr. Vivian Fuchs, I thought you might be interested in a picture I have of the Husky dog that found the body of Captain Scott who died of starvation at the South Pole in 1912. It's probably the only picture of that dog in Canada."

Of course I was interested. Who wouldn't have been?

Locked in ice for eight months, these men of the Scottish National Antarctic Expedition of 1902-04 were forerunners of such invading forces as those commanded by Dr Vivian Fuchs and Sir Edmund Hillary now in the South Polar regions. Middle figure in the left rear rank is Teddy Havens, now in Victoria.

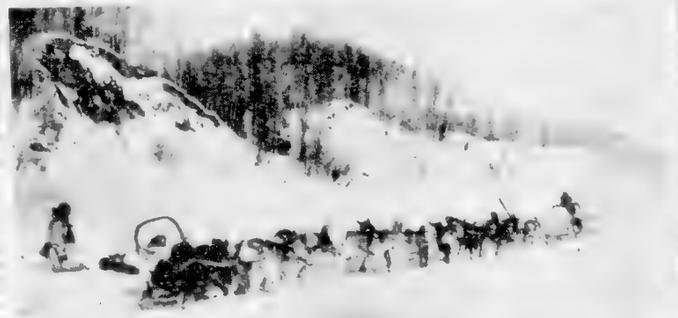
THE FARTHER NORTH, THE FEWER THE CRIMES

LONELY LAW-MEN

STRETCHING NORTH from Canada's provinces far into Polar Sea is a strange empty region, North America's last frontier, now a strategic area—first line of intercontinental defence, crossroads of global air travel, a potential treasure chest of minerals.

The only law in this lonely land is 140 Mounties, scattered across it from Labrador to the Yukon in 13 outposts, small weather-beaten frame buildings whose wind-torn Union Jacks proclaim Canadian sovereignty over the territory. In the high north these men lead lives as stark, as withdrawn, as reconciled as any monk's in the fastness of Tibet. Yet there is no lack of men for service in what is called G division. Half the men who go in do not want to come out.



Sometimes the Huskies turn wolf and rip and tear the helpless . . . as they did Mrs. Sidney Cray, wife of a Mountie. Men of the northern post amputated her leg—an abortive attempt to save her.

Pioneers Populated Wide Saanich Area

OF THE FIRST WHITE PIONEERS who settled on the Saanich Peninsula none has contributed more to local development and civic welfare of this area, none has sunk their roots more deeply or deserve greater recognition than the Michell family.

The name Michell is French and derives from a Huguenot family which fled to Cornwall, England, from the religious persecutions in France in the 16th and 17th centuries.

Farms like this now dot the broad acres once cleared and tilled by pioneering families like the Michells and Turgooses in Saanich.

DAY OF REST

From now on the women folk of the town of Hashimoto in Wakayama prefecture will get a day off on the 15th of each month while their husbands do the dishes and diapers.

At first the idea was to set up a farmers holiday. But the women protested.

"Men can take a break any time they want to," they argued, "and, besides, they always think up extra things for us to do when they're around the house."

The menfolk reluctantly admitted that the women were right and agreed to give their wives a holiday once a month.

ANOTHER FIRST-HAND example of the meaning of B.C.'s centennial year came my way the other day when I chatted with Principal Alfred E. Caldwell, head of the Indian Residential School at Alberni. A sturdy, white-haired Irishman, Caldwell has been 33 years in the Indian educational field, interweaving in his career ministerial and magisterial powers, along with medicine and mathematics.

PRINCIPAL ALFRED E. CALDWELL . . . one of a long line

Those are typical Grade 7 youngsters at the school full of fun and bright as the new silver dollars that commemorate the 100th birthday of their province. From left to right, they are Geraldine Edgar, Daisy Peter, Lenny Jones, Vivia Smart, Greta Stewart, Stewart Ross, Andrew Joseph and Joan Late.

Students come from all over B.C. to the residential school at Alberni. From front to back these students are Sam Underwood Jr. of Brentwood, Marie Jones, 14, of Fort Langley, Barbara Bob, Head Navy Bay and Frances Rickey, 16, of Kitkatla.

B.E.G. Coach Elated . . . . . By Swim Enthusiasm

Every Year a Bigger Splash

By COURTNEY TOWER

Children by the hundreds are plunging into organized swimming with enthusiasm spurring them on to good competitive and no doubt incidentally strong Canadian competitive teams.

They'll give Canada worthwhile representation this July at the British Empire Games at Wales and some individual stars like Victoria's Canadian record-breaking Jean Wheaton.

This is the bird's-eye view of Howard Kirby, Vancouver, 38-year-old coach of the Canadian B.E.G. swim team that will be selected at trials April 5 and 7 in Montreal.

Canada will send a [illegible] to the Games [illegible] and places to at least the top four or five at the games he discussed yesterday at the Victoria Cycling Club during the B.C. open swimming and diving championships.

He was invited by his nephew Jack Kirby, a keen swimming enthusiast and long-time member of the Dolphin Swim Club of Vancouver, of which he is coach.

Mr. Kirby has been a swim coach in Vancouver for 19 years, seven as assistant to the famous Percy Norman at Vancouver Amateur Swim Club. He became coach of the club for a year when Mr. Norman retired to take time out to the Dolphin Club when it started up [illegible].

HOWARD KIRBY

Mr. Kirby said [illegible] for youngsters [illegible] BC has given [illegible] the city.

"When I started at VAC [illegible] years ago [illegible] numbers [illegible] Be.

"We [illegible] but [illegible] made [illegible] and more [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Engaged

Engagement is announced of Miss Genevieve Ivan Marsh, daughter of Mrs. Leah Thompson of 859 Mortimer Avenue and Mr. Joseph H. Marsh of Calgary, Alta., to Tpr. Albert Reeves, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Reeves, West Germany. Wedding will take place in Calgary in September.

Alcoholics . . . . . Should Be Pitied

'It's Not a Sin...'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Married [illegible] alcoholics [illegible] Fogarty, co-ordinator of the A[illegible] foundation here says.

* * *

Husbands tend to desert [illegible] at Accurate husband. He [illegible] view. And it's doubly hard for women to return to normality and respectable society once their husbands wash their hands of them.

Mr. Fogarty said men are more selfish when it comes to putting up with a drinking spouse.

* * *

Edmund C. McRae, the clinic's executive director, estimated that one of every six alcoholics in the city is a woman. In the last nine months 85 women have [illegible]

Mr. Fogarty said [illegible] Most women [illegible] husbands [illegible] Most [illegible] Alcoholic people still [illegible] Fogarty [illegible] And such women must be assisted to help [illegible]

Man-Size Advice — By Barney McKinley

Unadventurous Males Like Simple Food—and Lots of It

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Colonist reporter Barney McKinley in portrait of his past career as a ship's cook . . . It's "home like the wimp to it"

As a half-baked chef who has literally cooked his way around the world I should have plenty of recipes to pass on for the astonished delight of Victoria housewives.

But the hard-boiled fact is few women have occasion to whip up one cuties for 40 to 60 men or whip up a batch of soup big enough for a galley boy to drown in.

But of enterprise I was missing around in would like the occasional opportunity just to try. It could me especially who once took a last look at Lot's wife disappear into the piney and he was never halfway through the first pan.

The trick is not to spoil my gravy.

Few Pointers

My experience in mixing cakes, as they were gave me a few pointers however. I've found it best to let the gentler character work them since women like to eat but are actually fairly better than a bridge's fare.

As a cook the cook has to know what people like to eat. It's a long swim back from mid-Atlantic.

But here I'd better say I'm not [illegible] the cost [illegible] of costs. That's your problem. I'm not going to want the average household [illegible] good eating.

Most of us, [illegible] steaks, [illegible] meat, roast beef, roast pork with some. Chops are all right every [illegible] but most tend to be [illegible] dried [illegible] fried breaded veal or pork cutlets.

They Don't Know

Oh the other food must [illegible] from [illegible] By [illegible] will eat eight [illegible] them of [illegible] are [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] compose the.

Roast veal is [illegible] think [illegible] beef [illegible] but stews and [illegible] [illegible] bacon ham corn beef [illegible] Are served with [illegible]

Ham and bacon are [illegible] fried with eggs but the [illegible] must be slow-cooked so they arrive at the table crisp but not burned.

Eggs incidentally should be fried on one side only. Fair amount of bacon fat part not too hot to consume or [illegible] and if you want the yolks firmed over put a pot lid over them while [illegible]

To get back to meat. Pot roasts will pass [illegible] well but decidedly [illegible] male Canadian diet but make sure they are good and brown. Then he thinks it's oven roast and both he and the budget are happy.

Garlic is good to improve flavor. But only a little bit and make sure all visible evidence has disappeared.

Point here is a lot of people who figure they can't stand garlic actually do like a little as long as they don't know they are getting it.

Only One Way

In this school there is only one way to cook fish and that's in the form of deep fried fish and chips. Crisp and a little too brown is the order here. Only other kind of fish approved generally is canned salmon, the red varieties—and this is only to be used for making mug-up sandwiches and should be accompanied by a slice of onion.

Only other really accepted way to serve potatoes—other than French fried — is to [illegible] cream with lots of milk and butter and mashed.

Gravy is important. Most [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

A LOVELIER YOU

By Mary Sue Miller

IDEAL FOOD FOR DIETERS. Cottage cheese rates greater attention on reducing menus than it usually receives. A whole cupful counts only 215 calories and goes further than many foods with higher scores toward satisfying the inner girl.

What's more, cottage cheese offers a goodly amount of protein, a nutrient especially essential for quick and healthful weight losses. Besides being necessary to the renewal of body tissue, protein helps with the absorption of calcium. And calcium, as related to dieting, stays the nervous tension and fatigue that so often accompany it.

To get as much protein as is contained in a cup of cottage cheese, you would have to drink two and a half pints of whole milk. And it would cost you 865 calories!

Plainly, cottage cheese makes an ideal food for dieters. You can eat it as is or use it as a base for numerous low-calorie dishes. A column on variations will come along soon. Keep watch!

DIET AND LIKE IT!

Reduce without starving! Send for my purse-sized booklet, "Diet . . . And Like It," which includes: Shortcuts to dieting; a calorie calculator; simplied menu planning; your model weight. Lagging Cameramen Get Extended Deadline

Deadline for submission of entries in the second annual open competition of the Victoria Amateur Movie Club has been extended to Tuesday.

Number of entries has been poor, said Cye Burley, club spokesman. Some of the classes are without entries, so that any submission in those classes would win a prize.

Mr. Burley said some people may wrongly fear their entries not good enough. "The class of entry expected is purely amateurish. They don't have to be edited or anything."

The competition includes 21 classes in 8 m.m. or 16 m.m. movies and 35 m.m. slides.

Entry forms may be obtained and left at photographic supply stores or departments of department stores.

Japan Gulch 'Museum'

Scurrah Supports Powerhouse Plan

Electrical engineers have made some progress in their campaign to have the old B.C. Electric powerhouse at Japan Gulch near Goldstream saved as a "museum piece."

The plant, on watershed property, has been shut down after 60 years of service, and its machinery may be dismantled as soon as warm weather makes access more convenient.

But a delegation from the Victoria branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers persuaded the Greater Victoria water board to talk to the B.C. Electric about leaving the machinery where it is.

"Fifty or 75 or 100 years from now it would be a real curiosity," said Mayor Percy Scurrah. He suggested that the time might come when groups interested in the powerhouse as a museum could finance fencing and other precautions so that the public could be admitted.

"The thing that always haunts the water board is the danger of fire," he said.

Tot Finds Wrong Family

VENTURA, Calif. (UPI) — Mrs. John A. Besand awakened at 6 a.m. to find that her three-year-old son, Kieth, was not in his bed and immediately began arousing other apartment tenants.

A woman in an adjoining apartment, Mrs. Robert Curtis, awakened by the commotion, took one look at the infant sleeping between her and her husband and hurried to assure Mrs. Besand that Kieth was safe.

Apparently the night-walking Kieth had stood crying outside the Curtis apartment and was hustled into bed by the drowsy neighbor who did not bother to check the crib of little Danny Curtis, who slept through the night.

Mrs. Curtis explained that because of the darkness she had just thought Danny got out of his bed and was wandering around.

Let's talk REAL ESTATE

By Jack Mears

UNSOLD HOMES

Like everything else homes are sold according to the law of supply and demand which is often interchanging. Nothing will sell unless there is a demand for it, regardless of the price the seller wants. The pricing of Real Estate is probably the most important factor in an Agent's relation with buyer and seller.

Selling homes is hard work, make no mistake about that. Statistics prove that it takes an average of 90 days to find a buyer for the home that is priced right on the market. During that time the agent has to spend his time, money and effort in an endeavor to find a purchaser. There are never more than a few buyers for any particular home at any one time and those buyers have (not) homes to choose from with a variety of prices and terms. They are seriously going to choose the best available for their dollar.

Overpricing in the first instance means that you lose a number of possible buyers. The Agent by proper and careful presentation can help a lot, but he is in direct competition with the market and cannot beat it. No one can.

Many times recently we have had definite complaints from would-be sellers that their homes have not sold because they were ill advised to ask too much in the first instance. We are asked if we can help. Of course we can if the owner will face facts.

Right now the market is full of overpriced homes but only those priced right are selling. By that I mean homes priced fairly in view of the cost of reproduction plus land value, less the proper allowances for obsolescence, depreciation and financing. We can always sell properly priced homes on if you really want to sell give us a ring.

News of Sidney

Pearkes, Green Sharply Rapped

SIDNEY—Sharp criticism of both Defence Minister George Pearkes and Public Works Minister Howard Green was voiced at a meeting of Sidney and North Saanich Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Pearkes was charged by Mrs. E. L. Hammond with having "ignored" her appeal for action on the small boat harbor required at Sidney.

Dr. C. H. Hemmings, chairman of Sidney village council, sought chamber support in an attempt to have Mr. Green do something about providing the necessary mooring. Mr. Green was castigated because of his apparent lack of knowledge of the situation.

In letters to both the council and the chamber, Mr. Green connected the small boat harbor with the anticipated new ferry wharf.

Members of the chamber agreed that the minister was hazy on the subject, pointing out that there are two separate problems.

Local bodies have been trying for several years to have better facilities provided for visiting yachts, which use Sidney in greater numbers than all the other ports of B.C. combined.

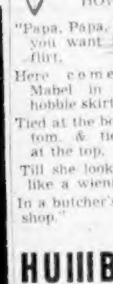
"IN THE SACK"

Some like the "sack," while others get shook.
When considering the "chemise," or the "sack look."

But most of the gals nurse a secret passion.
To take a fling at this curveless fashion.
A doll in here . . . her skirt had a slit.
Said "It's NOT the sack . . . but what's IN it."
They certainly don't fit like a shimmering sheath.
But suggest a provocative figure, lurking beneath."
Another client told me she made her own wrap.
And it sagged very stylishly in red burlap.
This lady, one of the more tallish tomatoes,
"I not only LOOK—but SMELL like a sack of potatoes."
"But everyone likes potatoes," she went on to say,
"And I'm no 'bag' in my black negligee."
Still another I asked (a "sack" she'd just bot),
To tell me frankly . . . what she thot?
"The sack is sad, for tiny waist yokes.
But a blessing for us . . . built like home folks."
But those pointed-toe shoes can only be put,
On dames that are born with 2 toes on each foot."
All this recalls a verse of long ago,
I'm not too sure . . . just HOW it did go . . .



"Papa, Papa, if you want to flirt,
Here comes Mabel in a hobble skirt.
Tied at the bottom, & tied at the top.
Till she looks like a wienie
In a butcher's shop."

HUMBER'S

In This Year Of The Sack, girls . . . it's a wonderful time to be looking at cribs . . . we have some very encouraging ones, saggingly priced.

Tree-Lover Urges:

Transform Malahat Into Dogwood Drive

Dogwoods should be planted alongside the Malahat to make a dogwood drive from Victoria to Nanaimo, Mrs. H. C. Bowes, 2973 Pickford Road, has suggested.

In a letter to Dr. Adam Szczawinski, provincial botanist, Mrs. Bowes lamented the number of dogwoods which were destroyed to make room for the new highway construction.

Mrs. Bowes, 72, and confined to a wheelchair most of the day, also asked Dr. Szczawinski to help her get a dogwood or a mountain ash for her garden.

"Trees are one of my greatest joys," she wrote. "There are no trees left in front of my little home."

Her appeal met with a quick response—she has already been promised a dogwood, donated by a Victoria resident.

Letter was prompted by a recent appeal by Dr. Szczawinski for residents to plant native trees in their gardens as personal centennial projects.

Response has been good, Dr. Szczawinski said last night. Many persons have written and phoned, asking for more details.

Embroidery, known to the ancient Egyptians, probably reached its greatest perfection before the 15th century.

Borderline Cases

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

PERENNIAL BORDER—(J. W. A., Duncan.) Some colorful and long-blooming plants which wouldn't grow too tall for your border are lythrum, particularly the varieties Morder Pink and Morden Gleam; perennial phlox, monthretia, heuchera, daylilies, geum and the hardy outdoor chrysanthemums. A few peonies would be nice but I must admit their period of bloom is not very long.

I am rather surprised that you don't like the dwarf Michaelmas daisies for these are, for my money, the most rewarding of all the autumn-blooming perennials. I wonder if you could have hit upon some poor varieties?

Geums will tolerate a little light shade, but would not be a success in a completely sunless border. The plant for such a spot is the funkia or plantain lily.

SHRUBS FOR IDENTIFICATION—(V. G., Victoria.) The twig you sent me with the small, saw-toothed leaves is from Kerria japonica pleniflora, commonly known as Jew's Mallow. It bears golden yellow double flowers in May and reaches an ultimate height of about nine feet.

The other twig, with small, smooth-edged leaves, is Cotoneaster Simonsii, an Asiatic shrub bearing tiny white flowers in June, very popular with the bees, and scarlet berries in the fall and early winter.

Your tulips may be sprayed up to the time the buds open, but I think you would be better advised to use a cylinder of all-purpose garden dust [illegible] than a spray, as some combination dusts contain a fungicide as well as a bug-killer.

FENCE COVERING—(J. S., Chemainus.) As I understand your problem, you want a plant to cover your fence which will be attractive throughout the whole of the year and will bear colorful berries in the fall and winter. For this purpose, I don't think I could recommend anything better than Cotoneaster horizontalis, the Herringbone Bush. This isn't a vine but a flat-growing shrub with small, shiny, evergreen leaves, tiny pink flowers in late spring and festoons of scarlet berries in the fall.

The plants run around $1 each, and you'd need one for every five feet of fence.

ACID-LOVING SHRUBS—(W. A. McK., Victoria.) The best treatment you can give your rhododendrons, azaleas and camellias is to keep their roots mulched constantly with half-rotted leaves. Oak leaves are the best for this purpose, although you can stack the fallen leaves of any trees to rot down for this purpose. Top up the mulch annually with an additional layer.

Your Christmas bulbs cannot be flowered indoors again next year. Those grown in water and pebbles should be thrown out, while the ones potted in soil should be allowed to complete their growth, then dry them off and store them until fall, planting them in an outdoor bed.

West Coast Enigma

Ship Nobody Claimed

By PAUL WELLS

SEATTLE (AP)—The inbound Japanese freighter Meitetsu Maru's radio crackled at 3.35 a.m. last Nov. 2. A 70-foot white, wooden fishing boat had been sighted burning furiously 30 miles off Vancouver Island.

There was no sign of survivors. A fishboat of that size normally carries a crew of 10 or more.

For five days U.S. Coast Guard and Canadian ships and planes engaged in an intensive hunt that covered 12,940 square miles of ocean. A crude, homemade chopping block imbedded with fish scales and a ruptured fuel tank with charred wooden fittings were found the second day.

After that, nothing.

Was it a ghost ship? Abandoned hulk? Foreign interloper? Enemy spy ship?

Or, as it appeared, a regular purse seiner?

No one knows. The Coast Guard has the case in its active files but has failed to turn up a single clue. There have been no inquiries from families of missing men, no reports of overdue boats of that size, no claims for insurance, no discovery of additional debris.

The case has many strange aspects.

The Meitetsu Maru, bound for Vancouver from Yokohama with R. Ouchi as captain, first sighted the red glow of the burning ship about 1 a.m. but failed to make a radio report until 2½ hours later.

The skipper explained that night to RCAF search and rescue interrogators it would have been pointless to make an immediate report. He said the fishboat was so nearly consumed by flames it was certain to sink before help could arrive.

There were these other odd circumstances:

The Japanese captain said a white light was seen near the burning boat from afar but moved away rapidly as the freighter approached.

A number of American "draggers" were fishing in the general area, but only one reported seeing a glow in the night—and the coast guard thinks even this sighting may have been flares from search planes.

The ship was afire from bow to stern, as if set. Most ship fires centre near the fuel tanks.

The usual debris that would have floated from a sinking, active fishboat was missing.

The Meitetsu Maru's skipper was able to make out what appeared to be part of a registry number on the side of the flaming hull. He said it looked like this: K-13-AC, with gaps between the figures and fore and aft letters.

Coast Guard Capt. Frederick G. Wild, who had charge of the search and later investigation, said the letter "K" indicated the boat was Canadian. Some British Columbia fishing vessels have a "K" registry series preceded by a number designating the district. American boats do not use this letter.

But a painstaking check of all possible combinations accounted for every ship with those registries.

Four months have brought no answer to the enigma. There's no indication one ever will be found.

Hollywood Today

Kirk Put All in 'Vikings'

HOLLYWOOD—Kirk Douglas' salary to himself from his independent picture, "The Vikings," was $350,000 and 15 per cent of the gross intake. By the end of production, Kirk was putting into the film all the money he had, for a total tab of $7,000,000. When the original "Viking" movie was made in 1914, its entire cost was $18,000, advanced to the producers by Donald Crisp in his capacity as executive of the Bank of America. Those really were the good old days for Hollywood.

Eighty three-year-old Edmund Gwenn would welcome letters — he's at the motion picture country house here. Teddy, as everyone in the movie colony calls the lovable Santa Claus of "Miracle on 34th Street," is suffering greatly from his long-time arthritis.

* * *

Henry Fonda's next movie will be another western, "Staked Plains," and the girl he wants to co-star with him is Janet Leigh.

* * *

Charles Boyer, asked if he thought he knew more about making screen love today than 20 years ago, answered: "One does not become a better lover with age, only a better actor." Charles has a hefty percentage of the picture he made with Brigitte Bardot, "Une Parisienne," and, with the current boom in Bardot, it should make him a small fortune.

* * *

Warners' "Damn Yankees" movie is stalled until the musicians' strike is settled. So, while waiting to start his co-starring role with Gwen Verdon, Jimmy Komack is cutting a record album with Betty Garrett, titled "Ciara."

* * *

Rosalind Russell wants to make sure of the right cast for the movie version of "Auntie Mame," and the call sheet for all tests reads, "assisted by Rosalind Russell." It's not often that a star can be bothered.

* * *

Gisele Mackenzie married Bob Shuttleworth in such a hurry they did not have time to buy an appropriate wedding ring. She has it now—a platinum band, encrusted with diamonds.

Winning or losing a single vulnerable slam is usually enough to decide a team of four match, just as it is often enough to determine whether you wind up any single session of rubber bridge on the winning or losing side of the ledger. In this deal from a national championship, North got started on the wrong foot and never recovered.

North's four no-trump bid was intended as a Blackwood bid to find out about aces and South so interpreted it. When North learned that his partner held two aces he determined to bid a slam, and mentally reviewing the bidding, realized that he had not yet indicated the five-card length of his heart suit. Unfortunately for his team, the hearts were unfavorably placed and North could not avoid losing two trump tricks.

When the hand was played at the other table, North made the correct opening bid of one no-trump. He held a balanced hand with 17 points in high cards and valuing his hand for a heart bid did not take if beyond the 18-point level, above which an opening bid of one in a suit should be preferred. South responded two clubs, exploring a possible fit in spades, and North jumped to three hearts as an indication that he held a five-card suit and better than a minimum no-trump. South went to six no-trump, ending the auction.

Played at no-trump against the same opening lead of the jack of clubs, North could afford the luxury of a safety play in the heart suit. He won the lead with dummy's club king, led to the heart ace and returned a low heart up to the jack. If East played the king, declarer would win four heart tricks—more than he needed to bring home the slam. East had to duck the trick in order to keep two stoppers in the suit.

When South's jack held the trick and West showed out, declarer abandoned the hearts. He cashed his king and jack of diamonds, then led the jack of spades. West won with the queen, but East couldn't get in again and declarer eked out his twelve tricks by winning three spades, two hearts, four diamonds and three clubs.

Surprises in Space Up Soviet Sleeve?

MOSCOW (AP)—The belief is growing in Moscow that the Russians are preparing a bold new venture into space.

Soviet officials, including Communist Party Chief Nikita Khrushchev and foreign Ministry spokesman Leonard F. Ilyichev, have told Western correspondents recently—only half jokingly—that space surprises will be forthcoming.

But authoritative sources have dodged questions about what and when.

There is general agreement that the next Soviet space project will not be merely another said repetitious space experiments are a waste of time.

The Soviet press has revived discussion about the practicability of sending a rocket to the moon or around it. And there also has been renewed press comment on the prospect of manned space flights. These articles emphasize the desirability of more unmanned flights first.

The Soviets desire not to lose a propaganda advantage to the United States may mean that the surprises will begin in the near future.

The Russians launched Sputnik II within a month after the first satellite went up. More than 4½ months now have passed without another launching.

The Soviet government has announced that Sputnik II will fall into the atmosphere and burn between April 5 and 15. That would leave two U.S. but no Soviet satellites in orbit—which might produce a propaganda disadvantage of which the Russians are keenly aware.

Before the first U.S. satellite was launched the Soviet propaganda machine repeatedly needled American scientists with comments that the Soviet Sputniks were lonely for American company in space.

They can be expected to do their best to prevent a reversal of these taunts.

Campaign Highlights

We'll Protect Minorities Diefenbaker Tells Quebec

ST. HYACINTHE, Que. (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker Saturday made a renewed appeal for support from Quebec in the March 31 election.

To an audience here of more than 2,000 he said the Progressive Conservative party created and will protect the constitutional rights of minorities and provinces.

"Therefore, our party is entitled to expect an active and effficient representation from the province of Quebec in parliament," he said.

That would enable the party "to continue to play its part; that of maintaining the essential principles of Confederation."

Mr. Diefenbaker's speech, delivered mostly in French, also promised "every consideration" to the safeguarding of the textile industry, an important industry in this city, 30 miles east of Montreal.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (BUP)—Liberal leader Lester Pearson told a rally of 600 supporters in Niagara Falls yesterday he thought the unemployment situation had been worsened by the "indecisive, inconclusive and wrong trade policies" of the Conservative government.

* * *

WINNIPEG (BUP)—Deputy CCF leader Stanley Knowles Friday night scoffed at a public opinion poll prediction that indicated dwindling support for his party. Mr. Knowles said the cry of the voters was for a "real opposition" which only the CCF could provide.

* * *

BELOEIL, Que. (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker yesterday charged Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson with making irresponsible and desperate promises as the March 31 election approaches. He referred specifically to Mr. Pearson's new proposal for an income tax holiday.

* * *

FORT FRANCES, Ont. (CP)—The federal treasury is heading for over-expenditure of $300,000,000 because of the change of government last June 10, former Liberal finance minister Walter Harris said Friday night.

* * *

OXFORD, N.S. (CP)—Nova Scotia Liberal Leader Henry Hicks Friday told a Liberal rally here the $1,185,000,000 public works program proposed by Prime Minister Diefenbaker would result in expenditures of "... $106,000,000 on the St. Lawrence Seaway, $47,000,000 for the Trans-Canada pipeline, and $140,000,000 for the Canadian National railway. The only new thing is the proposed highway along the Arctic Ocean," Mr. Hicks said.

Race Against Time

Workers Swarm Over Audet Home

Some 11 men swarmed over Gerard Audet's home at 3184 Mars yesterday, working to make the house legally livable.

All employees of Farmer Construction Ltd., the volunteers cleared yards of broken up stone from the basement and prepared eaves for stuccoing.

"I think we will make the deadline," said A. "Scotty" Chisholm, who "convened" the work party.

The deadline is April 18, when Mr. Audet must again appear before Magistrate Henry C. Hall on a charge of taking his wife and seven children into the house without having a certificate of occupancy.

Unemployed since November, Mr. Audet had to move from his previous home and so moved into the incomplete structure.

"I have watched this guy work to fix it up, work day and night, rain and shine," said Mr. Chisholm. "I admire him. He is a genuine guy, appreciates the help he is getting."

Mr. Chisholm said it is planned to pour concrete for steps to the house and the basement floor at another work bee next Saturday.

Donations of money, now totalling $1,125 in a fund gathered by F. J. Knudsen, 140 Olive, will probably be used for doors and frames, a finished floor and other interior work in the house.

"He Who Pays The Fiddler Calls The Tune"

The Financial Post, spokesman for big business in Canada, recently pointed out that "BIG BUSINESS WILL SWITCH HORSES IN THIS ELECTION."

The Post estimates that big business will contribute "ABOUT 12 MILLION DOLLARS AS IT DID IN THE JUNE 10 ELECTION" but "THE SIZES OF THE LIBERAL AND CONSERVATIVE TREASURIES WILL BE REVERSED."

These statements are bare-faced, unashamed verifications of what the CCF has been telling Canadians for 25 years.

BIG BUSINESS IS ONLY CONCERNED ABOUT WHAT THE TORIES OR THE LIBERALS WILL DO FOR BIG BUSINESS!

Canadians must ask themselves: "WHAT FAVORS WILL BE GRANTED TO THE GIANT MONOPOLY CORPORATIONS WHO SUPPLY THE TORY CAMPAIGN FUNDS IF THE TORIES ARE RE-ELECTED?"

The Financial Post also says: "The voters seldom contribute a nickel directly."

Big Business and the Financial Post are trying to ignore the fact that Western Canada sent more CCF members to the last parliament than any other political party.

They say "THE CCF SPENDS PEANUTS BY COMPARISON" TO THE LIBERAL AND TORY PARTIES.

Let's show the Big Money Boys that CCF'ers control the CCF financially and every other way.

'Democracy Deathly Ill'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The democratic process shows symptoms of sickness and can easily die if not cured, Bruce Hutchison, editor of the Victoria Times, said Friday night.

Mr. Hutchison told the British Columbia annual Scout winner he was "venturing a few opinions which the general mind of democracy condemns and doubtless will dismiss with polite contempt."

"Our society, for all its outward look of ruddy health, is afflicted by a grave, quite possibly fatal disease," he said.

Visible afflictions were the contest of world power, an economic slump, and a national election campaign "distinguished by the wildest confusion and utmost irrelevance."

"For the first time in a century basic assumptions of our system have fallen into doubt. For the first time we must ask . . . whether a system conceived in liberty and dedicated to government of, by and for the people can long endure.

"Looking at the symptoms, I suggest an honest democrat might have to answer no."

Among the symptoms Mr. Hutchison listed "government by Gallup poll, statesmanship replaced by salesmanship, and politics alarmingly like a Miss Canada contest."

"The democratic state has lacked the self-discipline of its individual members . . . it tends more and more to make the easy, soft and wrong choices in great affairs rather than the hard, unpopular, right choices."
